Guns protect pilgrims on cross' path

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Some 10,000 pilgrims followed the way of the cross under the protection of Jewish guns Friday, remembering the final steps of Jesus on the most solemn day of the Christian calendar.

As the pilgrims, many carrying large and heavy crosses, trekked the winding via Dolorosa to Calgary Hill, Israeli soldiers with submachine guns and automatic rifles stood on roofs and at street corners of the walled holy city in the heaviest security in years.

No incidents were reported.

The day passed peacefully with none of the unrest that has rocked the Old City and the occupied West Bank since an Israeli court gave Jews the right Jan. 29 to pray near Moslem shrines on Mt. Moriah, site of the ancient Jewish temples.

The somber pilgrims, wearing suits, sweaters, raincoats and jeans, walked under sunny but somewhat hazy skies from the traditional site where Pontius Pilate sentenced Jesus to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the traditional place of his tomb.

Many of the pilgrims walked with the burden of massive, wooden crosses, some as high as eight feet, on their shoulders as they passed the 14 stations of the cross where Jesus stopped on his way to be crucified.

The pilgrims chanted prayers as they wound their way up the Via Dolorosa to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre and rested their heavy crosses against the walls inside the church.

Arab vendors stood at the doors of tourist shops along the ancient route, hawking olive wood figurines of Jesus, crowns of thorns, dark wooden crosses and religious paintings.

Clusters of pilgrims knelt at each

1st Arlington Bank loan Dodds-linked

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

First Arlington National Bank loaned about $260,000 to a Schaumburg pizza restaurant firm which was closely connected to bank Vice President Bruce H. Dodds, The Herald has learned.

Dodds was a director of Spirit Enterprises Inc. which obtained the loan in February 1975 to remodel and open a Jake's pizza restaurant in Schaumburg.

The loan was questioned by federal bank examiners last year and was later sold to the Ladue Interbelt Bank of Ladue, Mo.

The Dodds family owns controlling stock in both the Arlington Heights and Ladue, Mo. banks.

The Herald reported last week that both the FBI and bank examiners have investigated bank records and that a federal grand jury recently subpoenaed documents as part of a probe of misapplication of bank funds by a bank official.

BRUCE DODDS WAS indicted Thursday on charges of misapplication and embezzlement of $18,000 in cashier's checks from the bank in 1971.

Spirit Enterprises Two, Inc., a second firm controlled by the same stockholders as Spirit Enterprises Inc., also received a $275,000 loan from First Arlington National Bank to open a Jake's pizza restaurant in Rolling Meadows in 1974, The Herald learned.

Federal banking laws limit the amount of loans to corporations with the same stockholders. While loans to firms connected with officials of the lending bank are not illegal, a federal bank examiner's guidebook states that "self dealing" and loans to firms connected with large shareholders of banks are "involved in almost all serious problem bank situations."

Spirit Enterprises Inc., 829 Higgins Rd., Schaumburg, received the $260,000 loan Feb. 14, 1975, records in the Illinois Secretary of State's office show.

The firm's 1975 annual report, filed in Springfield about Feb. 29, 1975, lists "Bruce H. Dodds" in a space provided for the names of corporate directors. A line is drawn through

Dodds quits 3 business, political jobs

by KURT BAER
and JOE SWICKARD

Bruce H. Dodds, First Arlington National Bank vice president under federal indictment for embezzlement and misapplication of bank funds, has resigned three business, civic and political positions in Arlington Heights.

In addition, Dodds, 30, of 727 S. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights, will remain on indefinite leave from First Arlington National Bank until his case is decided, bank officials said.

The Herald learned Friday that Dodds had:

- Resigned his position of auditor at the Tollway-Arlington National Bank.
- Resigned as finance chairman of the reelection campaign of State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights.
- Resigned from the Arlington Heights Police Pension Board, to which he was appointed in February by Village Pres. James T. Ryan.

Tollway-Arlington president Harold Harvey said Friday Dodds resigned "last week," but refused to discuss the reasons for Dodds' leaving. "I have nothing to say about Mr. Dodds or his supposed problems," Harvey said.

Douglas Dodds, Bruce Dodds' father, is chairman of both First Arlington and Tollway-Arlington banks.

Harvey refused to say whether any Tollway-Arlington National Bank records have been subpoenaed as part of the federal investigation. "I don't choose to make any answer at all," Harvey said when asked whether Tollway-Arlington bank records had been called for by the federal grand jury.

Business transfers—a trauma for 'gypsy' families

by JUDIE BLACK

Judy Brown of Buffalo Grove cried for a week when she had to leave a neighbor to whom she had grown attached.

That was the first time she moved as the wife of a Volkswagen corporate employe, and she vowed never to get that close to a neighbor again. It's better for your mental health, she said, especially when you have to move four times in 12 months.

That year-long merry-go-round of moves began in Columbus, Ohio, progressed to Des Mones, Iowa, then to Champaign, and finally to Buffalo Grove where the Browns now live.

The Browns are only one among an estimated 500,000 job-related relocations that occur each year, according to the Employee Transfer Corp. of Chicago.

Today

"MOVING GETS in your blood," Mrs. Brown, mother of two, said at a recent seminar sponsored by the corporation. "I like to move; it's the gypsy spirit."

Unlike gypsies, however, wives and families of transferees must find a new house, enroll in new schools and become important parts of their new communities.

It's hard, and not everyone succeeds in every move. But companies' increasing awareness of the psychological, familial and financial strains of frequent relocating have prompted several changes, according to seminar participants.

When the Robert Seligmans, now of Buffalo Grove, made their first move 14 years ago they simply packed their belongings in a U-Haul and drove away. Now most companies reimburse families for moving and travel expenses, allow paid time off to look for a new home and help in selling the old home and buying the new.

SOME COMPANIES also offer incentive bonuses to families who move.

"It's money, money, money, that's what the boss thinks is most important about a move," a young wife of a recent transfer said. "Bosses might think so, but they're wrong."

Mrs. Seligman's husband was already off on his first trip for Searle Ultrasound, a subsidiary of G. D. Searle & Co., when she came down with the flu. The move to Buffalo Grove was the first in five moves and the Seligmans know no one. Mrs. Seligman was uncertain about finding a doctor, so she sweated out the flu for two weeks without medical help or her husband.

But already the two Seligman sons, 8 and 13, are settled in new Boy Scout troops even though their mother

U.S. files lawsuit over home appraisal discrimination

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government Friday charged four nationwide home appraisal and loan associations with downgrading home values in integrated neighborhoods in violation of the 1968 Fair Housing Act.

Assistant Atty. Gen. J. Stanley Pottinger said the civil suit was necessary because apparisal and loan standards that the associations impose on member real estate appraisal and lending firms affect mortgage loans and home sales throughout the country.

The suit named the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, the Society of Real Estate Appraisers, the U.S. League of Savings Associations, and the Mortgage Bankers Assn. of America.

THE SUIT was filed in U.S. District Court in Chicago, the Justice Dept. said. All four nonprofit associations are based in Chicago.

"The two major trade organizations who govern appraisers in the country are the defendants here," Pottinger said. "Over 90 per cent of all appraisers are accredited by one or two of these defendants."

"To retain their accreditation, appraisers must follow the standards set by the associations and what they are taught in training schools," Pottinger told reporters. He said lending firms follow the standards in loan decisions.

These standards are based on the "myth" that racial integration of a neighborhood automatically lowers property values, Pottinger said.

THE JUSTICE Dept. said U.S. Savings represents about 98 per cent of the nations savings and loan associations and Bankers Mortgage's standards affect almost every conventional home loan in the nation.

The suit charged the associations have continued to set the same discriminatory stndards they "overtly" required accredited appraisers and lenders to follow before the Fair Housing Act made them illegal.

"Prior to the effective date . . . defendants maintained overtly racially discriminatory standards . . . and instructed their members that dwellings in racially integrated areas have substantially lower value . . .," the suit said.

"The 'infiltration' of blacks and of geographic area was treated as an other 'inharmonious' groups into a important factor lowering the actual or prospective value of all homes in that area," it charged.

This standard, the suit said, "perpetuates racial segregation in housing.

'Howlett unaware of race track ties'

Illinois Racing Board Chairman Anthony Scariano said Friday he hss no reason to think Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael Howlett was aware that Nationwide Acceptance Corp. owned race track stock when he borrowed $100,000 from the firm. Scariano said Howlett's attorney, Don Reuben, has answered most questions the board sent him about the loan. The board is investigating the loan at the request of Gov. Daniel Walker, who charged prior to the March 16 Democratic parimary election that Howlett "put himself into hock" to race track interests by borrowing the money. Walker lost the primary to Howlett. The secretary of state said he borrowed most of the money in 1972 for use in his campaign, and later repaid it out of campaign contributions. Nationwide owns 3.5 per cent interest in the Fox Valley Trotting Assn., which races at Sportsman's Park. Under Illinois law, it is illegal for race track stock owners to make political contributions.

Adlai mum on presidency

Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., said Friday he was not "running for or from" the presidency but that he expects an open Democratic convention and that he will expect his 86 delegates to stick with him until or unless he releases them. Stevenson told a news conference he saw the convention at this point as "wide open." "It is probable that none of the declared candidates and Hubert Humphrey, undeclared candidate, will be within striking distance on the first ballot," he said. Stevenson declined to express a preference for any candidate. And he said he would be "very reluctant" to say he would accept the vice presidential nomination if it were offered him. "I said earlier it's wrong to say 'No.' I don't feel as strongly about that in the case of the vice presidency," said Stevenson. "The vice president occupies an ambivalent position. He's elected by the public but he's accountable to a president."

Hap Holly shuns easy way; attains goals in darkness

by MIKE KLEIN

You're sightless. It's found to be cataracts which have caused the darkness. So you have them surgically removed. And shortly, you're fine again.

That's how it usually goes. But not for Hap Holly. He chose not to have the cataracts removed.

Hap is a student of Christian Science beliefs. That's his reason for fighting the cataracts another way.

"The blindness can be resolved through God," Hap said this week between sessions of a special seminar which he presented to students at Forest View High School.

People ask me whether the situation can be resolved medically. Well, it can," said Hap. "To me, that's a copout. People say that's a weird way of looking at this. But to me, surgery would be the easy way out."

DO NOT FEEL sorry for him. Instead, offer respect. Everyone ought to lead the many lives of Hap Holly.

Goals and achievement; that's the game for this young man living in Des Plaines.

It would seem there are no summits which Hap cannot conquer.

That includes 14,433-foot Mt. Elbert, highest of the Colorado Rocky Mountains. Hap has scaled that peak, plus four other mountains in the great western range.

Hap did not see those mountains; he felt them.

There's been so much excitement and accomplishment packed into Hap's 25 years. No challenge scares him.

HAP IS NOT even his real name. It's Alanson Perry Holly. Everyone called him Lanny until eighth grade. Then he said, no more of that, I hate the name. From now on, it will be Hap.

He's lived in Des Plaines for about one year. Hap tours the Chicago area playing his accordion professionally. His fingers make the portable keyboard sing.

This summer will be Hap's fifth in the last six as a camp counselor at the Round-Up Ranch near Buena Vista, Colo. It's for students of Christian Science belief.

Hap was raised in southern California. Forrest and Jean Holly, his parents, are blind. Hap's father lost his sight from injuries sustained in a college football game.

Two brothers and one sister are normally sighted.

Hap came to Forest View this past Monday and Tuesday with something entitled, "Nonvisual Perception Seminar," NVP for short.

He's designed the presentation not to show how blind persons cope, but rather to increase a sighted person's awareness of touch, taste, hearing and smell by causing distrust in vision.

He told the students they should pay attention to such things as how a person shakes hands. Is there confidence or weakness?

BUT HAP DID NOT tell the students he could once see, 18 years ago. The blindness occurred suddenly, without warning.

"Just literally overnight," said Hap. "Simply, I went to bed seeing and woke up in the dark. That was it."

Hap said it took him one year to adjust to the new world of darkness. Then, there was no stopping him.

He undertook braille instruction in second grade, typing lessons three years later and special mobility skills in eighth grade.

Hap started classical piano in third grade. That lasted six years. He memorized the braille music sheets, then practiced his music.

He later switched to accordion, which Hap plays by ear.

At Escondido (Calif.) High School, Hap advanced to features editor of the student newspaper.

There were always more challenges. Principia College in downstate Alton nearly did not admit Alanson Perry Holly, its first blind student. "There were all kinds of heated debates among the admission people," Hap said.

AS YOU MIGHT guess, few things deter Hap Holly. A man's worst enemy is usually himself, Hap said.

"We all hold ourselves back," said Hap. "People use excuses. They say they're being held back by somebody. Or when such and such a situation changes, they'll do this or that.

"Too many 'ifs' and 'whens,' " said Hap. "Too much in the future and not enough using what we have today.

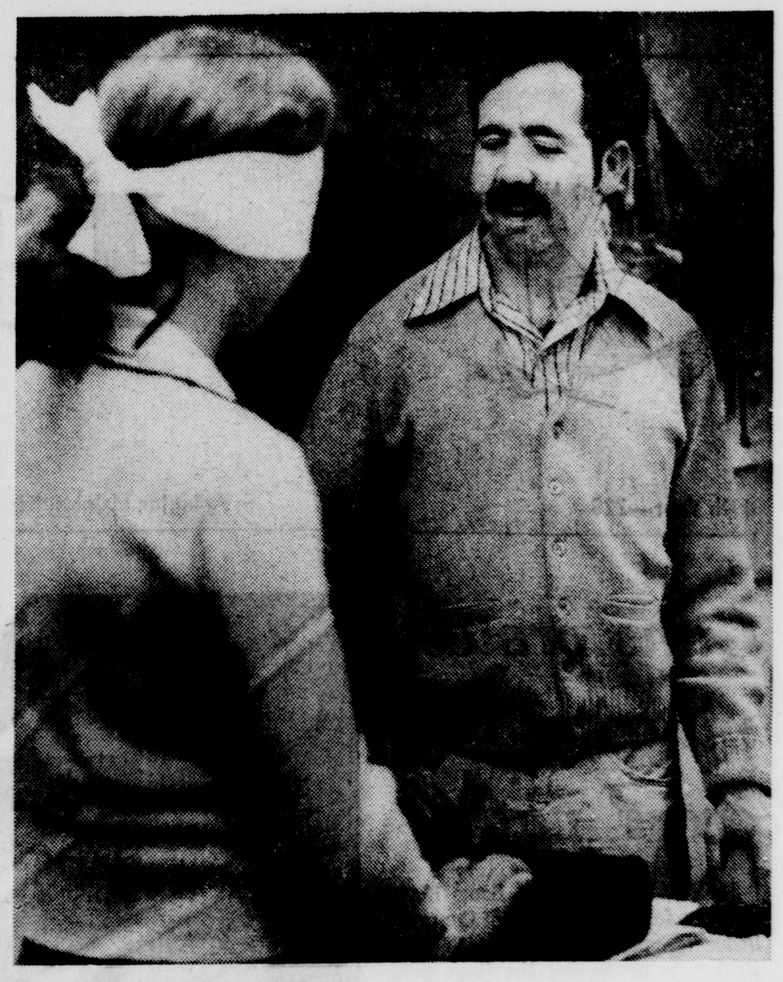
"One of my biggest goals is to make the most of today, to set goals and achieve them, to actually write them down. You can set goals in the mind, but if you don't write them down, they'll slide."

He talks now about developing NVP into a viable seminar for audiences ranging from junior high school students to their instructors.

Hap showed the Forest View students a large orange poster. Inside a triangle, it said, "Paris in the Spring." They took a quick look.

Or did it? On closer look, the poster actually said, "Paris in the the Spring."

"Seeing is not believing," Hap told the students.



HAP HOLLY is blind, but he doesn't let that prevent him from living a rich, rewarding life, which includes conducting a recent "Nonvisual Perception Seminar" at Forest View High School.

FERNANDO DE LA CRUZ, 24, is "nailed" to his cross in re-enactment of Christ's death on Good Friday. The re-enactment took place in San Pedro Pampanga, 50 miles north of Manila.

station of the cross, saying silent prayers as reporters, photographers and television cameramen looked on.

The Christians mingled in the Old City with bearded, black-coated Jews on their way to the wailing wall for Passover services at Judaism's holiest shrine.

The solemn Good Friday procession will be followed in two days by a joyous Eastern Sunday mass at the church celebrated by Msgr. Giacomo Beltritti, the Roman Catholic patriarch of Jerusalem.

In Rome, Pope Paul VI carried a light wooden cross for 10 minutes in a Good Friday evening procession at the Colosseum and told the crowd that everyone bears the guilt for the death of Christ.

The 78-year-old pontiff, suffering from arthritis of the knees, appeared less steady on his feet than a year ago.

The Pope's black limousine pulled up to take him back to the Vatican the moment he finished addressing the crowd of several thousand from the Palatine hill.

The internationally televised "Way of the Cross" procession was the high point of Good Friday observances commemorating Christ's death on the cross. Saturday night, Easter Eve, the Roman Catholic Pontiff will make the joyous announcement that Jesus has risen from the dead.

The papal vicar for Rome, Cardinal Ugo Poletti, carried the light, 6-foot wooded cross for the first 10 of 14 stations from the Colosseum to the Palatine hill from which the Caesars ruled Rome.

Pope Paul, wearing a crimson cape — the papal color of mourning — over his white vestments, took the cross from Poletti at the 11th station, which commemorates Christ nailed to the cross. He carried it, holding it with both hands in front of him, for the next three stations, marking Christ's death, deposition from the cross and burial.

Addressing the crowd at the end of the procession, the Pope said the re-enacting of Christ's passion left "A doubt, a question to be solved, which regards all of us personally: Are we involved in this story?

"How did we watch it? As mere extraneous spectators? As curious and scholarly watchers of the death of a wise and just man, such as, for instance, Socrates?"

The Pope said neither of these attitudes was right.

"Whether we want it or not, we are all responsible for the death of Jesus," the Pope said.

Earlier in the day, the Pope went to St. Peter's Basilica, filled with a capacity crowd of 30,000, to kiss the feet of a crucifix.

In the afternoon ceremony the Pope, lacking his "Fisherman's Ring," a symbol of authority, walked barefoot to the empty main altar of St. Peter's.

There, he genuflected three times, then kneeled to kiss the feet of the crucifix.

All other images in the basilica were covered with purple cloths in sign of mourning.

Cop killed, 7 wounded by Baltimore sniper

A teenaged rifleman shooting from the third floor of a row house near downtown Baltimore killed one policeman and wounded four others and a civilian Friday evening before surrendering, police reported. A University Hospital spokesman said one officer was in serious condition, three others were satisfactory and the civilian was in good condition. The gunman, who police said was 18 and apparently acting alone, was unhurt.

Flu vaccine tests begin next week

The first experimental batches of swine flu vaccine have arrived and testing will begin on human volunteers next week, The Food and Drug Administration said Friday. The agency said it has about 24,000 doses of the vaccine from four manufacturers under refrigeration. Testing to determine appropriate levels of dosage will start about the middle of next week.

Judge halts Teamster ratification ballots

A federal judge in Washington ordered the Teamsters union Friday to stop the mailing of contract ratification ballots until he rules on a dissidents' suit challenging the balloting procedure. The temporary restraining order was issued by U.S. District Judge Joseph C. Waddy, who will hold a hearing next Tuesday. The suit was filed last March 31 by a dissident Teamsters group known as the Professional Drivers Council or PROD. Teamster negotiators tentatively settled on a new contract for some 450,000 drivers April 4 after a brief nationwide strike. The Labor Department has agreed to supervise the balloting and vote count.

Dead oil rig workers panicked: survivor

Thirteen men killed in a space-age survival capsule they used to escape an oil drilling platform sinking in the Gulf of Mexico died because they panicked, a crewman who survived in a second capsule said in Texas Friday. A spokesman for the drilling company said more men might have been killed if the capsules had not been in use. The platform, Ocean Express, went down Thursday night amid 20-foot waves and winds of up to 60 knots. A helicopter pilot trying to rescue the crewmen said the 16-story rig being towed to a new location evaded its tugs and began listing badly. Ten seconds after it started to sink, it disappeared in 180 feet of water.

Hughes had a will: ex-employe

Billionaire Howard Hughes wrote a will and it was placed in a safe deposit box in Hollywood, according to a onetime associate, Noah Dietrich. Attorneys for the Hughes estate have said a will has not been found. Dietrich, of Los Angeles, who left Hughes' employ in 1957 after 32 years of service, insisted that a Hughes will had existed. "I don't known what has happened to it," he said. "I don't trust some of these people at the Hughes organization."

Taxpayers spend $12.6 million for resorts

American taxpayers are providing $12.6 million a year for maintenance and salaries at three posh resorts maintained by the Pentagon for servicemen on leave, according to a congressional study released Friday. In addition, the General Accounting Office said 193 American military personnel are working as security personnel, golf grounds crewmen, mail clerks and bowling alley pinsetters at an Alpine ski lodge in Garmisch, Germany. Other military personnel work at an Air Force recreation center in the Philippines that includes massage clinics, and a 15-story hotel at Hawaii's Waikiki Beach.

Premature Irish bomb blast kills 2

One of a series of bomb blasts in apparent retaliation for the police killing of a Provisional Irish Republican Army officer killed two persons Friday. The victims apparently were blown up by their own bomb. Terrorists twice breached the new security fence around central Belfast and planted bombs that badly damaged a boutique in Castle Street and a beauty parlor nearby. Four gunmen also planted a bomb in a gas station. In the fourth incident, two men died and two youths were injured in a premature bomb explosion in the doorway of a carpenter's shop in Belfast.

Chiefs work out own Lebanon peace plan

Syria and Palestine guerrilla leaders Friday rejected U.S. mediation efforts as "schemes" and worked out their own seven-point peace plan to end Lebanon's year-old civil war. A choking sandstorm from the Sahara helped keep fighting between Moslem leftists and right-wing Christians to occasional mortar and machinegun exchanges.

New moves to enforce the 27th cease-fire came after Syrian President Hafez Assad and Yasser Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), agreed in Damascus on points to bring peace to the war-ravaged area.

Patty implicates Wendy in robbery

Pair drove 'switch' getaway cars

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst told authorities she and Wendy Yoshimura, her roommate when she was arrested, stood by in reserve getaway cars during a fatal bank robbery a year ago, it was reported Friday.

It was the latest disclosure of what Miss Hearst allegedly told authorities to win a light bank robbery sentence and immunity from further prosecution.

The San Francisco Examiner reported Miss Hearst said Miss Yoshimura drove a "switch" getaway car in the $15,000 holdup of a bank in Carmichael, Calif., on April 21, 1975 in which a woman was killed.

According to FBI sources quoted by the Examiner, Miss Hearst said both she and Miss Yoshirmura waited several blocks away from the scene and were never near the bank during the robbery. After the robbers fled, she said, they switched to the car Miss Yoshimura was driving to complete their getaway.

It was the first time Miss Hearst had implicated Miss Yoshimura, with whom she developed a close relationship prior to her arrest.

Meanwhile, U.S. marshals removed all of Miss Hearst's personal belongings from her cell at the San Mateo County jail and took full control of her security at the hospital where doctors Friday night removed a tube which had been inserted into her collapsed lung. Authorities would not say where she will go when she is released from the hospital, but it appeared likely she would be taken to a federal facility in San Diego for three months of psychiatric study.

It was not known what effect this would have on charges facing her in Los Angeles. Her court date last Wednesday was postponed because of her illness.

Earlier, it was reported Miss Hearst said Symbionese Liberation Army member Emily Harris fired the shot in the bank that killed Mrs. Myrna Opsahl, wife of a surgeon and mother of four, but said it was an accident. She also reportedly said Michael Bortin and James A. Kilgore were in the bank, and Steven Soliah, Kathleen Soliah and William Harris waited outside.

Soliah is on trial in Sacramento for the holdup. Bortin, who was involved in a 1972 illegal explosives case with Miss Yoshimura and served a jail term, denied he took part in the robbery.

In the Soliah case, a federal judge postponed until Monday arguments on a defense demand by Soliah that prosecutors disclose what Miss Hearst may have told the government about his alleged role in the fatal bank robbery.

Teen charged with little girl rapes

MIAMI (UPI) — For three mornings, a distraught father and his 7-year-old daughter haunted the neighborhood where she was raped and robbed of her school lunch money last Monday.

Thursday, it finally paid off with police arresting a 19-year-old suspect who confessed to raping 80 to 100 little girls in the past few years. Police said he had assaulted so many little girls he couldn't remember them all.

"Daddy. Daddy. That's him," cried the little girl as they drove past the young man. The father — who admits he had thoughts about killing the rapist — called police, who arrested Donald Brundidge, 19.

Brundidge, unemployed father of a 2-month-old son, was charged in four rapes but detectives said other charges were pending. They said the oldest victim was 9 years old.

"He said he did so many, he can't remember all of them," related Detective Sgt. Mike Gonzelez. "He said he averaged two or three a month."

Police said many of the rapes were not reported because parents wanted to spare their little girls from more involvement, and because some of the youngsters probably didn't even tell their parents.

"They're little and they were afraid. Some of the little girls may think they did something wrong," said Detective Louise Vasquez.

She said the rapist often rode a white bicycle and would sweep his little victims up with one arm.

"Sometimes he just took them by the hand, sometimes he threatened them," Vasquez said. "They were little and they went along with what he said."

The 7-year-old girl told her father and then police Monday that the rapist had led her unto a clump of bushes, struck her, raped her and took her lunch money.

The father said, as he lay in bed that night listening to the little girl "screaming and hollering" in her sleep, he decided to do something about it.

"I was determined to look for this guy. I was thinking of killing him at one time," said the 36-year-old businessman.

Brundidge's mother said she believed he had a personality problem.

"There's something wrong with him," she said. "He never has too much to say. He never looks up when you talk to him."

Brundidge's wife declined to comment, but his sister said she couldn't believe the charges. "He might act crazy but he has plenty of sense," she said.

Brundidge was later identified by another little girl, age six. "There he is. That's him," she shouted after looking at 24 pictures.

Her mother, when she learned of the arrest, said: "He should be dead or locked up. There's no excuse for him."

Experts contend price hikes no cause for alarm

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New price hikes for gasoline, steel, copper and lead — combined with the prospect of increases for aluminum — were interpreted by government experts Friday as a "confirmation" of economic recovery.

These increases, all of them announced in the past few days, were certain to create new inflationary pressures at a time when President Ford is fighting to win the White House on his own.

But administration economists said the increases provided no reason for alarm. "These price increases are within our forecast of 6 per cent inflation this year," said William Seidman, Ford's chief economic adviser.

Seidman anticipated no extraordinary efforts by Ford to discourage such increases, although they are being closely monitored by the administration.

Price developments over the past week included:

- A one cent per gallon increase in gasoline by several major oil companies, combined with a 2 cent, two-stage increase by Marathon Oil Co.
- An increase from 21 to 23 cents a pound in lead prices and a 4 cent a pound hike in copper by most major producers.
- An increase by U.S. Steel Corp. averaging about 6 per cent on certain pipe and tubing products and about 7 per cent on standard steel rails, effective May 1.
- Reports that the aluminum industry was preparing for price increases of as much as 10 per cent.

Libbers 'idiotic': Prince Charles

Charles, at 27 one of the world's wealthiest and most eligible bachelors, also said he had no plans for marriage in the near future. In an interview with Good Housekeeping magazine, Charles said: "Those idiotic women who go around telling all the other women to think the way they do — basically, I think because they want to be men — are, to my mind, totally wrong." Charles also said he had to consider marriage carefully, because "In my position, the last thing I could possibly conder is getting divorced."

1st Arlington Bank loan linked to Dodds

Dodds resigns 3 political, civic, business positions

vice president of the First Arlington National Bank, said Bruce Dodds "voluntarily asked for a leave of absence" March 4 when bank officials became aware of accusations against him.

About that same time, Dodds resigned his position as finance chairman in Mrs. Macdonald's reelection campaign, the state representative said.

"Bruce resigned about six weeks ago, saying that he had a lot of out-of-state business that would keep him busy," Mrs. Macdonald said.

Ryan confirmed Dodds' resignation from the police pension board Friday.

"He had indicated to me earlier this week — Monday or Tuesday — that he was resigning. He cited the controversy and the newspaper articles," Ryan said.

DODDS WAS RYAN'S campaign treasurer in his successful race for the village presidency last year.

"Naturally, I'm saddened by the indictment. I really don't know much about it. Allegedly this happened a number of years ago. In the two or three years I have known him, both he and his family have contributed much to the community," Ryan said.

"Of course, this is not a conviction," Ryan said of the indictment, but added, "His decision to resign was the right one."

It was about March 4 that the federal grand jury subpoenaed the First Arlington National Bank records which led to the four-count indictment of Dodds announced by U.S. Atty. Samuel K. Skinner Thursday. Dodds is charged with the embezzlement and misapplication of $18,000 in four cashier's checks between April 22 and July 12, 1971.

Lawler said Friday "There is not and has never been any question of loss to the bank" in connection with the alleged misapplication of funds. "In the opinion of our counsel, there are no legitimate claims against the bank at thie time," he said.

HOWEVER, FIRST ARLINGTON National Bank is a defendant in a series of lawsuits seeking millions of dollars in damages as the result of alleged mismanagement.

A suit brought by the owner of Barney's Boats of Chicago, formerly located at 1140 E. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, charges the bank violated a bankruptcy court protection order when it removed boats from the store late in February. Barney Kogen, owner of Barney's Boats, and three corporations are seeking $1.2 million in damages from the bank.

Reports of the federal investigation of Dodds and the lawsuits against the bank were first disclosed by Herald investigative reporter Al Messerschmidt last week.

Dodds had not yet posted a $4,500 personal recognizance bond late Friday afternoon. Arraignment before a U.S. magistrate is expected sometime next week. Dodds reportedly will be represented by a prominent criminal law firm.

The indictment against Dodds does not affect the financial soundness of First Arlington National Bank, both federal and bank officials say.

"We have capital surplus reserves of $5 million. Cash and U.S. securities amount to $35 million, and the financial strength of the bank is beyond question," Lawler said.

If convicted, Dodds faces a maximum sentence of five years imprisonment and $5,000 fine on each count of the four-count indictment.

Dodds' name and address on the annual report form.

DODDS' HOME ADDRESS, 727 S. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights, also is listed as the address of Jack. Verdone, a resident of Addison, and of Spirit Enterprises Secretary Carol Prikopa, who signed the report.

Verdone is president of Spirit Enterprises Inc. He told The Herald that Dodds does not own stock in the corporation and that Dodds resigned as a director of the firm in February 1975.

Verdone and Jake Flowers purchsed the Jake's Pizza franchise in Schaumburg from drag racer Arnie Behling in October 1974. Behling opened the cary-out pizza franchise in September 1973.

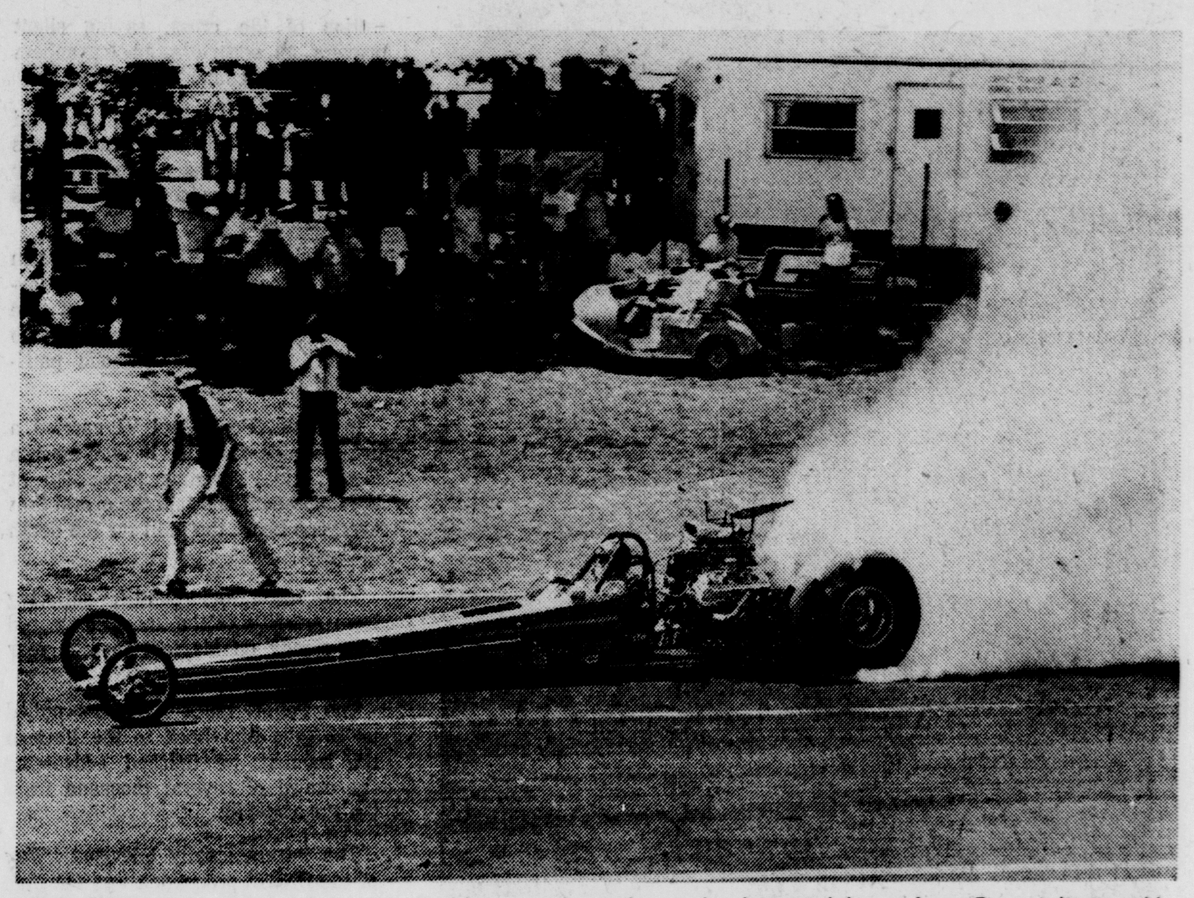
Behling was the driver of Dodds' race car, which won a National Hot Rod Assn. championship in 1971. The car was named "The Spirit" — apparent inspiration for the title of Spirit Enterprises Inc.

Dodds also used the word "spirit" when naming his $12,000, 23-foot boat the "Espirit Too" more than two years ago.

WHEN BEHLING formed Spirit Enterprises Inc. in 1973, Verdone, who also is head of Jake's International Inc., which franchises pizza restaurants, was listed as registered agent.

Verdone remodeled the Schaumburg restaurant in December 1974, with the $260,000 loan from the bank. It was the second large loan for Verdone-owned firms obtained from First Arlington National Bank in 1974.

Verdone purchased the bankrupt Viking Table Restaurant, 4015 W. Algonquin Rd., Rolling Meadows, with a $275,000 loan from the bank in late 1974.



"THE SPIRIT," owned by Bruce H. Dodds, won the national drag racing title in 1971. The word "spirit" was used in the names of two corporations which obtained substantial loans from First Arlington National Bank. Dodds was a director of one of the firms.

Spirit Enterprises Two, Inc. was incorporated by Verdone in August 1974 to control the Rolling Meadows pizza restaurant.

The word "spirit" was dropped from the corporation's titles last year, when Verdone switched the names to Rolling Meadows Pizza Inc. and Schaumburg Pizza Inc.

BILLY C. WOODS, the regional administrator of national banks, ordered First Arlington National Bank officials in October 1975, to rewrite loan policies, to reduce nonconforming loans and to limit loans to affiliates such as the Dodds' bank in Ladue, Mo. The agreement followed an extensive examination of bank records by Woods' staff.

The Herald reported this week that bank examiners questioned or "classified" large amounts of loans approved by the bank.

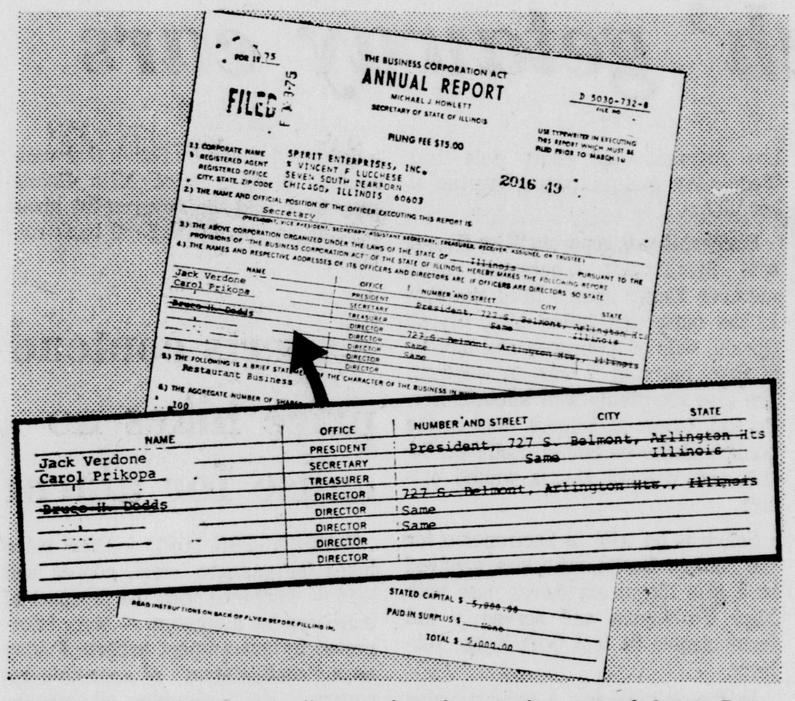
Federal banking regulations also limit lending of more than 10 per cent of a national bank's capital accounts to businesses controlled by the same individuals.

First Arlington National Bank's capital account totals varied between $3.6 million and $4 million during 1974, according to published call reports.

But loans for the pizza restaurants apparently surpassed 10 per cent of that figure — $535,000 in 1974. In addition, Verdone and Flowers personally borrowed $200,000 in 1974 and 1975 for real estate and other business dealings, the Herald has learned.

Verdone said he was not aware of the regulation and he was not notified that the $535,000 in loans were sold to the Ladue bank.

Jake's International Inc., with headquarters in Rolling Meadows, operates or has franchised 24 pizza restaurants in the Chicago area and is planning the opening of seven restaurants in California, Verdone said.



BRUCE H. DODDS originally was listed as a director of Spirit Enterprises Inc., which obtained a substantial loan from First Arlington National Bank in 1974, but his name was crossed through before the report was filed with the secretary of state's office. The addresses of other Spirit Enterprises officers are listed at Dodds' home.

Anti-vandalism program faces warm-weather test

by TOM VON MALDER
A news analysis

Elk Grove Village will have to come up with more money, possibly through a utility tax, for the fiscal year beginning in May.

Village officials were given the projected revenue figures for 1976-77 this week, but even the anticipated 11.1 per cent increase in revenue will not offset the increased costs of running the village.

The cold statistics show corporate budget requests of $6,025,000 and an anticipated revenue of only $4,344,000. But $107,000 of that revenue must be used to cover an anticipated deficit for the current fiscal year.

Even with a $30,000 budget cut authorized Thursday by members of the village board, a $1,758,000 deficit is projected for 1976-77.

RAISING TAXES appears to be the long-range solution — one which is coming up more frequently in board discussions. But raising real estate property taxes will not help in fiscal 1976-77 since the increased tax revenue will not be received until February and not available until fiscal 1977-78.

A short-term solution, such as the tax on utility bills which officials have discussed appears the only alternative to massive service cuts.

"I personally feel that I in no way intend to cut services. I think services is what makes Elk Grove Village," said Trustee Michael A. Tosto echoing the opinion of most village trustees.

The village board at the same time has vowed it will not operate the village with deficit financing.

ONE OF THE MOST costly items in the budget is the personnel category with each employe costing a minimum of $15,000. Insurance alone costs $1,056 for each patrolman and fireman at the top pay level, Finance Director George C. Coney said.

The recent 64 per cent increase in insurance costs is one of the major reasons for the village's financial difficulties.

Coney said if the board were to raise taxes by $23.48 per $10,000 assessed valuation, or about $2 a month, the village would receive an additional $800,000. But if the board were to cut personnel, it would only save about $105,000 for every seven employes released.

Trustee Theodore J. Staddler said own antivandalism programs even before the "Be Aware" group was formed.

IN HIGH SCHOOL Dist. 211, where a student fund to pay for vandalism was created, and in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, where new security systems have been installed, vandalism has declined.

School officials in both districts say they would support a renewed "Be Aware" program if vandalism begins to escalate.

Reduced vandalism has also been reported in the Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates park districts.

Hoffman Estates Director Allen Binder says the "Be Aware" program made the public more aware of vandalism, but the program's over-all effects should be studied by the group.

BINDER BELIEVES the group should probably meet three or four times a year to continue to monitor vandalism in the communities.

Auctioneer faces a room of misers

by JOE SWICKARD

The siren song goes on and on and ends with the same refrain, "All in all bid. SOLD — at auction."

Diamonds, toys, jewelry, coat trees, fern stands, lithographs salvaged from estates all going to the enticing chant of the auctioneer.

Hands flick upward to make the bids and auctioneer Joe Skeen points straight and true in acknowledgment, and the bids go on.

SKEEN, A MEMBER of those minority auctioneers who haven't attained the rank of colonel, arranged the items in the ballroom of the Palatine Howard Johnson's Thursday night, took out the ads and waited for the faithful to appear.

Oriental rugs, toy metal trucks, busts, figurines, paintings and bentwood cradles were placed around the room while winds, rain and funnel clouds swept outside.

Skeen told those who braved the weather that their trips were going to be worthwhile. Small crowds mean low bids and low bids mean bargains.

After a brief explanation of the bidding ground rules, the college students hired for the night began to trot out the goods.

SKEEN'S ASSISTANT Howard, a large but nimble man, held items aloft and recited their virtues. Liquid gold and silver Indian jewelry, paintings in the French manner, golden oak fern stands, he knew them all.

A diamond ring went for $75 after listless bidding, despite the cajoling of Skeen and Howard.

Using the "Bid back system," Skeen would chant backwards from a high figure until someone lifted their hand and the bidding started from that point.

Framed paintings were started by Skeen at $200 and as he chanted backwards, Howard's eyes swept the crowd for the upraised hand. There were none.

ALL RIGHT, Skeen admitted, who wants to start the bidding.

"$25," someone called out and Skeen tried to work the bid upward.

"$27.50 — do I have $27.50? $27.50. Alright, do I have $30? Do I have thirteee dollars," he dragged out the words in forceful humility.

"We seem to have a lot of frame buyers here tonight," he said, referring to those who don't care for a painting, but want just the frame.

Nobody disputed him.

A BENTWOOD royal cradle, one with an arm from which fabric could be draped, went for $45.

"I want to sell this, not rent it," Skeen joked in earnest.

A planter went for $37.50.

"$37.50," large Howard said incredulously.

Copper buckets with Delft handles drew low bids and Skeen pleaded, "You can melt it down. The metal alone is worth something."

THE BIDS STILL came low and slow. Skeen rolled his eyes at the bids but managed a smile.

Howard posed and postured while extolling the qualities of the goods.

A ship's wheel with brass fittings, elaborately wrought baker's shelves went with the call, "Sold at auction."

Howard gave a brass taxi horn a good blast to get the audience bidding. But, it, too, went after bidding sputtered along.

SKEEN WAS WORKING hard, moving his chanting at an increased tempo. It didn't help.

Items were retired with no bids being offered.

The crowd was quiet and watchful. They were sitting on their wallets.

With more than a trace of frustration, Skeen called out, "The auction is over. We've taken our bath for the evening."

The remaining items were now being offered at straight sale, without bids, negotiations or haggling.

Auctioneering is like fishing, all you can do is put out the bait. The other guy has to bite. And sometimes they just aren't hungry.

A flair for the dramatic spurs the bidding upward.

Auction aficionados.

Trustees to review boundary agreement

Arlington Heights has completed discussions with Mount Prospect on an agreement on future boundaries between the two villages.

The agreement, which has been approved by the Mount Prospect Village Board, will be reviewed by the Arlington Heights Village Board Monday night.

The purpose of the agreement is to ensure that the development of the unincorporated areas between the two villages will be consistent with their respective comprehensive plans.

THE AGREEMENT ESTABLISHES a boundary line for when owners of the unincorporated land ask to be annexed, with the exception of the Magnus Farm nursing home property.

The proposed boundary line between Central Road and Lawrence Lane is Douglas Avenue, and then along Lawrence Lane to the east property line of St. Cecelia's Catholic Church.

The agreement specifies that the Magnus Farm may be annexed by whichever village the property owner asks without the objection from the other village.

The 42-acre property shall be zoned for single-family development, subject to special use for a "nursing home, convalescent center, retirement home or other similar use," the agreement states. Cook County Circuit Court Judge Raymond Berg recently ruled that the property may be developed at 17 units per acre.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS has filed an appeal to Judge Berg's ruling, blocking the county from issuing building permits for a senior citizens' housing project planned by Alexander Magnus, owner of the property on Central Road.

Mount Prospect has decided not to join the appeal, but "we still would like to see it zoned for single-family development," Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said.

Eppley said Magnus has not requested annexation to Mount Prospect, and questioned whether the village board would agree to an annexation offer if the property was zoned for 17 units per acre.

In Scarsdale subdivision

Test streetlights to be installed

Five streetlights will be in operation in the Scarsdale subdivision by the end of the week to test residents' reactions to concrete pole-mounted mercury-vapor lamps chosen by the homeowners groups.

The experimental lights will be installed along Newbury Place between Rockwell and Fairview streets.

The streetlights were chosen by the Scarsdale Property Owners Assn. in February after it blocked a village proposal to install sodium-vapor lights throughout the village.

The installation costs for the light system proposed by the homeowners are about the same as for the sodium-vapor system proposed by the village, but operational costs are higher because mercury-vapor bulbs use more electricity.

The Scarsdale proposal calls for 175-watt bulbs on 15-foot concrete poles, spaced 220 feet apart—the same spacing used for the incandescent streetlights now in the subdivision.

For the indefinite test period, the new lights along Newbury Place will be spaced 220 feet in one stretch and only 100 feet in another stretch to test residents' preference, William Bachem of the village's engineering staff said.

A final decision on whether to implement the Scarsdale plan must be made by the village board.

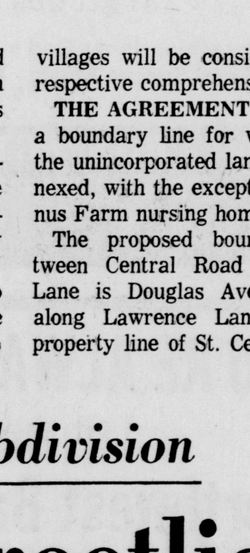
Elect Zanca Dist. 59 board chief

Judith Zanca has been elected president of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education for the second consecutive year.

Mrs. Zanca, who was reelected by voters to a third 3-year term Saturday, was elected president by board members Thursday in a 5 to 1 vote with Paul Kucharski abstaining.

Charles Canupp, who was seated on the board Thursday after winning Saturday's election, voted against Mrs. Zanca saying "most of the people I spoke to when I was campaigning said they wanted to see new leadership on the board. It was nothing against Judy personally."

Mrs. Zanca said she looks forward to a "good year. The board's going to work well together."



Judith Zanca

Board member Avis Wold was elected secretary of the board.

Evangelical senator warns of political Christianity

Even before Sen. Mark Hatfield began his address to the Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission seminar, the delegates gave him a standing ovation.

Hatfield, R-Ore., a Baptist layman, is one of the widest known evangelical politicians in the nation but neither his politics nor his religious views always satisfy that evangelical constituency.

Three years ago, at a National Prayer Breakfast — often occasions for pious self-congratulation — Hatfield warned such occasions can lead to "outright idolatry" by creating a civil religion which waters down traditional theologies.

"EVENTS SUCH AS this prayer breakfast," he told a crowd that included President Nixon, members of Congress, the Cabinet and the Supreme Court, "contain the real danger of misplaced allegiance, if not outright idolatry, to the extent that they fail to distinguish between the God of American civil religion and the God who reveals himself in the holy Scripture in Jesus Christ."

In the intervening three years Hatfield has grown even more concerned about the dangers of civil religion.

He told the Baptists that the United States is guilty today of the "sin of using religion to legitimize political leadership.

World of religion

by David E. Anderson

"We have put God on the throne of our land instead of on the throne of our lives," he added.

Touching one of the most sensitive nerves in American life — a nerve brought close to the surface during the turmoil of Vietnam — Hatfield said the "heresy" of today was pretending that the spheres of loyalty to God and the state are separate and equal.

"A CHRISTIAN'S PRIMARY loyalty is to the Kingdom of God," Hatfield said, and this loyalty limits — but not necessarily excludes — allegiance to one's country.

At the same time, he maintained that Christian freedom "is not grounds for withdrawal from political concepts and realities."

Another Senator with strong ties to the evangelical community, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., underscored Hatfield's warning against Christian withdrawal from the political struggles of the day.

"We know that the Kingdom of God cannot come alone by government policy," he told the Baptists. "But we know that if someone is hungry, we should give him food . . . ."

McGovern also warned against inflated notions of America in God's plans for history.

NOTING THAT THE founding of the country was grounded in principles pointing to a higher order, McGovern said "this foundation in a higher order does not mean that America can arrogantly claim to be an ordained nation, but that we must humbly seek to become worthy of the founding faith.

"We will not succeed fully; no earthly endeavor ever will," he added.

Remembering that his campaign for the presidency had been scorned by critics as the "politics of righteousness," McGovern said the lessons of the recent past confirm the biblical admonition that "righteousness exalteth a nation," adding that "with the stain of Vietnam and Watergate so vivid, I need not underscore the pitfalls in divorcing morality from public policy."

Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., another Christian politician with roots in the evangelical community, summed up the host of conflicting speeches and positions in a simple but eloquent way:

There is "no unequivocal and undisputed Christian position" on most issues facing the nation in a pluralistic society, he said. "We must instead be guided by Jesus' command that we love our neighbor as ourselves."

Business transfers—trauma for families

admits "they'd move back (to San Jose) in a minute."

Mrs. Seligman and other wives agree that attitude is the key to a successful and happy move. Parental attitudes can influence children, but active, enthusiastic children can roust a shy woman from her cloistered roost, they said.

"YOU CAN'T JUST SIT at home waiting for someone with a cake and a pot of coffee to knock on your door," Mrs. Brown said. "It's seldom going to happen."

Jane-Renee Weakly moved from Texas to Elk Grove Village more than five years ago. She encouraged all transferred wives to volunteer for various community groups, agencies and services. A native of France, Jane-Renee moved to New York and then to Texas where she met her husband and where their children were born.

She also suggested volunteering to chaperone high school field trips as a good way to get acquainted with a new community.

Today

The seminar, held recently at the Arlington Park Hilton, attracted several area real estate brokers. Wives said brokers could be invaluable help in smoothing a move.

"IT WAS A SHOCK to learn the change in value of our home dollar," a transferee from Pennsylvania said. Her $50,000 home was situated on a large tract of wooded land. "Our $50,000 won't even buy a tree here," she said.

The nearly 30 wives suggested several steps companies could take to ease an imminent transfer:

- Alert other company employes in the area a new employee and his family are moving there.
- Print the family's address, names and ages of children and their interests in a company newsletter to encourage other families to contact them.
- Encourage husbands to include their wives in company activities, bring them to new offices and introduce wives to new coworkers and bosses.
- Sponsor group sessions among several transferees and their families to discuss common problems.
- Compare climate, pace, cost of living and real estate values of the employe's present home and his new location.
- Be candid with an employe and his spouse about what the move actually entails — a change in title only, added responsibilities or more spendable income.

Bullish business times topic of talk

McCracken is Edmund Ezra Day University professor of business administration at the University of Michigan and served for three years as chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors.

The dinner will be held at the Arlington Park Hilton, Euclid and Rohlwing roads, Arlington Heights. Social hour begins at 6 p.m. followed by dinner. A charge of $25 per person includes dinner. HE IS RISEN!

1st Corinthians 15:3-4 "Christ Jesus Died for our sins according to the scriptures, and that He was buried and that He was raised on the third day according to the scriptures."

Jesus said "I am the resurrection and the life; he who believes in Me shall live even if he dies, and everyone who lives and believes in Me shall never die." John 11:25-26.

St. Paul said "That I may know Him (Jesus) and The Power of his Resurrection." Philippians 3:10.

How to Know Him in The Power of His Resurrection

1. Believe That Jesus Died For You.
2. Admit You Are a Sinner.
3. Be Willing To Turn From Sin.
4. Ask Jesus To Forgive Your Sins.
5. Ask Jesus To Come In Your Heart.

Asking is talking to Jesus, it's called prayer.
Suggested prayer:
Lord Jesus, I confess that I am a sinner, and I need help with my life. I believe that You died in my place for my sins; and I receive You, Jesus, right now into my heart. Take control of my life, and make me the kind of person You want me to be. Thank You for forgiving me all my sins, and coming into my heart this day.

5 things to do every day!
1. Read your Bible. Start with the Book of John.
2. Pray to Jesus every day. He is your best friend.
3. Get involved with other Christians in a Spirit filled church.
4. Share this Good News with some one. Tell them about Jesus.
5. Read and study 1 Cor. 12-13-14, Eph. 6:10-19, John 14:1-31, in your Bible.

Early feminists spoke their piece in coverlets

Collecting
with Grace Carolyn

One of the proudest possessions a collector can own is a hand-woven coverlet from 100 or more years ago. Often in surprisingly good condition, these authentic Early Americana examples provide a backward view of a way of life long forgotten.

As early as 1775 American women first knew the power of a boycott, when a group of hardy feminist types vowed to drink no English tea and use no English cloth. Their announcement in the Morning Chronicle and London Advertiser probably set many royal wigs atilt, in a day when the Colonies were still dependent upon England for wool. What they did have was a good supply of flax for making linen cloth, and these women declared their patriotism by wearing and using only homespun goods.

Most homes had a small flax wheel (and if you see a small wheel which looks rather like a miniature of one of the large six-foot spinning wheels, you will know it was for spinning flax) and as home production of wool increased, many homes also acquired the larger wheel.

ALMOST EVERY small town had its own weaver, who could make the necessary cloth from the home-supplied yarns. Little girls were introduced to weaving with small looms, similar to those the Brownies and Bluebirds use for making potholders today. These were used for weaving small items such as suspenders, belts, shoelaces and gaily patterned ribbons.

Because of the scarcity of wool, a peculiarly American innovation was discovered, linsey-woolsey. The warp (length-wise threads) were of linen and the weft (cross-wise threads) were of wool. The resulting cloth was used for clothing of all sorts and for coverlets, such as the one pictured.

German settlers in Pennsylvania are usually given credit for introducing their traditional weaving patterns and the bright reds and blues so often used in coverlets. The coverlets were practical, decorative and long lasting, witnessed by the number still extant. Red and blue were the most common colors, but it is not uncommon to find examples in pink, green, yellow and brown.

IN THE EARLY 1800s the weaver was often an itinerant who went from town to town with his loom, weaving the home-spun and dyed wools and linens which the housewives brought him. A double woven coverlet might take as much as 40 pounds of linen and a corresponding amount of wool, and a good weaver could turn out two or three coverlets in a week.

Early looms were narrow, and if you discover a spread which has been joined in the middle, you can assume it was woven on the narrow loom of the early 1800s. Many of these have dates and names woven into the borders, along with decorative trees, birds, houses and flowers, although the more intricate designs usually indicate a somewhat later coverlet, after the invention of the jacquard loom. The jacquard loom (named for its inventor, a Frenchman) could weave a wider cloth and these coverlets are usually of one piece.

The easiest way to date a coverlet is to look for the date in the border. Sounds simple, but I once had an example which I didn't even realize was dated until after I had sold it The date and maker's or owner's name can become such an integral part of the design that it may be difficult to see. If just a name appears, there are several books which list weavers of the 18th and 19th century, and it is sometimes possible to identify them through research.

IF YOU SHOULD own or find even a portion of an old woven coverlet, it is worth keeping, for these remnants can be used in many decorative ways. They can be combined with plain material for bedspreads, used to upholster a small chair or footstool, or even framed as a piece of Early American art. For artists they were, those deft-fingered long ago plyers of the shuttle and the foot harnesses of the weavers' looms.

The summer-and-winter weave coverlet such as the one pictured (Newspaper Enterprise Association photo) produced a two-pattern two-colored design and was reversible from light to dark sides. If you have questions or would like more information on a coverlet you own, I will try to identify it from source material I have on coverlets. Write Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, enclosing SASE, in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Free booklets educate on insurance, home protection

Home protection, from fire to burglary, and life insurance are areas of concern for people across the nation. In an effort to educate the greatest number in the most convenient way, several free booklets are available to answer questions on these vital subjects.

Two public service safety guides, one on fire safety and the other on home security, are offered by JCPenney and can be picked up at some of the larger Penney stores or by writing the company's New York offices.

The home security brochure profiles "your friendly neighborhood burglar" and gives some general safety rules on how to keep him out and what to do if he gets in.

THE FIRE SAFETY brochure lists fire hazards around the house, good safety habits for the family and procedures to use in case of fire. Early warning fire detection systems are also covered.

The booklets can be requested by sending name and address to Safety Brochures, JCPenney, 1301 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N. Y., 10019.

A booklet called "A Guide to Life Insurance for Women Only" points out the reasons for considering life insurance and describes the forms available to best fit various situations.

Single copies are free by writing for Women's Guide, Consumer and Community Services, Institute of Life Insurance, 277 Park Ave., New York, N. Y., 10017.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Daughter troubled by gluten allergy

Our 4-year-old daughter has had celiac disease since birth. We would appreciate any information on this, especially as to diet.

Most doctors don't seem to be familiar with this disease. After five months of trial and error by our local doctor, we had to take our daughter to a special clinic where she was eventually diagnosed and placed on a diet that contained non-fat dry milk, gelatin, puffed rice and bananas. She began to improve and gradually she began to have other foods, but they have to be cooked in corn oil and mustn't contain fat. We read an article by you once and learned that we could use rice flour. Any other information would be appreciated.

This uncommon condition is associated with an allergy or intolerance to gluten found in wheat, rye, oats and barley. It starts in childhood. The disease may disappear in childhood or early adolescence. There may be a recurrence of problems in adult life. The irritation of the intestine with gluten results in diarrhea and inability to absorb foods. This leads to vitamin deficiencies which can even affect clotting mechanism of the blood and cause calcium deficiencies as well as protein loss and weight loss.

The condition is hard to diagnose because it presents itself as a severe, unexplained diarrhea. Sometimes it takes trial and error to find out what is going on. One method of diagnosis is to eliminate all foods which may contain wheat, rye, oats or barley. When this is done the patient usually responds in a few days, but sometimes it takes as long as 12 months to recover from the irritation already initiated by gluten.

Initially the irritation of the intestinal tract may also cause intolerance to milk because of loss of the lactase enzyme normally present in the healthy cells of the intestinal wall. This may require the elimination of milk also at the beginning of treatment.

THE MAIN PRINCIPLE is to avoid products containing gluten protein. People are surprised where they find these products as fillers — in all kinds of canned goods, soups, condiments, pies, puddings, candy, salad dressings, ice cream, hot dogs and even beer though they are not found in whiskey. Use only products in their natural state. Use fresh meat, not processed meat such as lunch meats. Avoid any canned goods that would have any chance of any flour or filler put in them.

The diet should contain adequate amounts of protein, calcium and vitamins in order for the individual to recover. You can use rice, corn and soy flours. You have to watch out about the use of too much soybean products or other bean items, not because they will cause diarrhea, but they do have triple sugars that aren't digested and liberate lots of gas which may cause abdominal discomfort.

Extra vitamins may be needed to prevent associated vitamin B12 deficiency. For information on this anemia send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 4-5, Vitamin B12, Folic Acid, Pernicious Anemia. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Aluminum foil trick eases oven cleaning

At long last we seem to have a solution for the one continuing chore householders despise most — cleaning the oven after every broiling operation. The tip came from readers and several experiments have proved it out. Take chicken. First put some heavy duty foil across the length of the pan with the two ends doubled up so they stand about five inches high. Then put one piece across the width, with the folded part turned in towards the pan, also about five inches high. You don't have to put the folded portion in front very high. This faces the door, which is relatively easy to clean. Put the pan on the lowest shelf of the oven. You'll find that not only does the chicken come out perfectly, so does the oven. No splatters whatever. I've tried it now on steak and on a rib roast. Still a clean oven. A bow to the readers. A plus for you.

Dear Dorothy: Is there anything we can do to get the smell of dampness out of a bed rest (in good condition) which has been stored in the basement? Airing did not help. Someone suggested putting it in a box with some type of chemical or one of the kitty litter compounds. Would this work? —Mrs. Jacob A. Kellen

Furniture restorers say the only way to get an odor out of wood is to make a spray of sqeezed-out orange halves by crushing them in the blender and then adding a bit of water. They say one or two treatments ought to absorb the mustiness.

Dear Dorothy: I agree with you that No. 3 steel wool is the perfect thing for difficult scouring jbs, but I found that tiny pieces of the steel wool were getting into my fingers and giving me annoying little pains. I started using sturdy rubber gloves — what a difference. So much easier.—Gail Pelletier

Dear Dorothy: I was shocked when reading your reader's suggestion on crushing pills before taking them. She obviously doesn't know much about medication. Pills are made with various coverings so that they will not be digested until the right time. Some medications are too strong for certain parts of the system and shouldn't be released until they reach the intestines, and so forth. The protective coatings are designed to insure this. —Cyndie S. Wood

You have a point, althoug some pills can be crushed and put into a palatable food. Federal Food and Drug agrees with you that any pill that comes coated should be taken as is and any time-release pill should never be crushed. Certain medications made by different companies often do not taste the same. In these cases, a patient on checking can sometimes find a more palatable substitution.

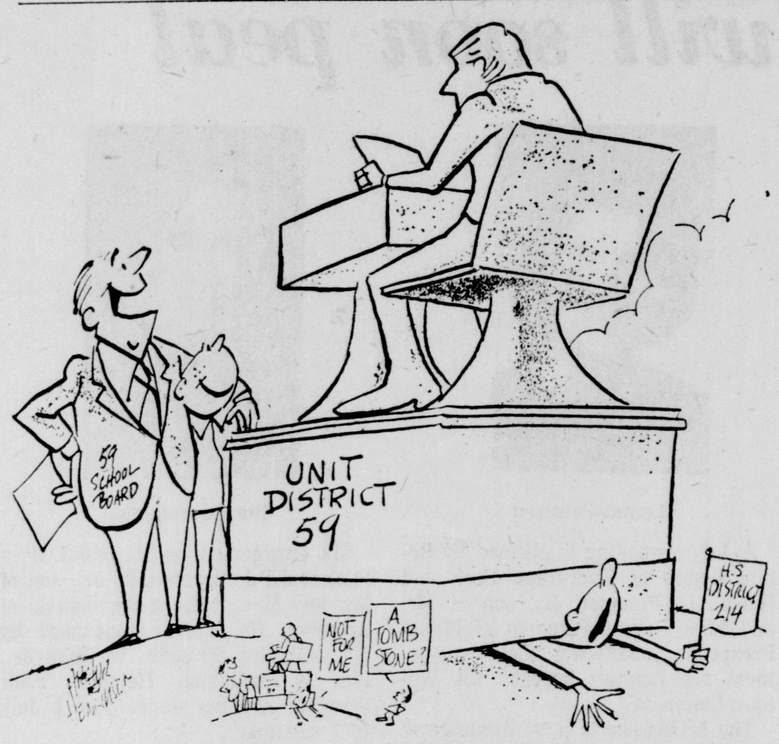
...we're all you need



I'm doing this all for you!

The way we see it

Unit district study needed

The proposed unit district in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 shows that the Northwest suburban area needs to study the question of school district reorganization.

For that reason, the Dist. 59 proposal, however narrow and short-sighted, hopefully will act as a needed catalyst to study the merits of a unit district.

The Dist. 59 unit district committee has agreed to ask State School Supt. Joseph Cronin to permit Dist. 59 residents to vote on whether to form a unit district. Before that can happen, the county school superintendent will hold hearings in the area on whether the unit district is a good idea.

The problem with the proposed Dist. 59 unit district has been pointed out repeatedly by officials of other school districts.

If Dist. 59 takes Elk Grove and Forest View high schools and the sizable tax base from the Centex Industrial Park out of High School Dist. 214, the high school district would be crippled.

That economic situation, which would certainly impair the quality of education in what is left of Dist. 214, is intolerable.

However, Dist. 214 officials and officials of other elementary districts in the area should not confine themselves to opposing the Dist. 59 unit district.

Instead, school officials and citizens from throughout the entire Dist. 214 area should seriously consider whether forming unit districts, either out of all of Dist. 214 or out of parts of it, makes economic and educational sense.

It seems reasonable, for example, that reducing the number of school districts in the area from the present seven could save administrative costs, something that is needed in a time of declining enrollment.

It is important to remember that school district boundaries are not engraved in stone and that unit districts are commonplace in other parts of the United States.

If the Dist. 59 unit district proposal starts a discussion on those issues as they affect the whole area, it will be a benefit to all the people of the Northwest suburbs.

Residents should respond to survey

Buffalo Grove residents who live in the Cook County section of the village have a chance to voice their opinions in a village-wide survey.

Residents of more than 4,000 households have been asked through the survey if they would join a subscription ambulance service. Unlike most communities, Buffalo Grove has a self-supporting paramedic program.

The residents' return of the surveys has been slow. In fact, some officials fear the final total will be fewer than the 2,000 responses needed for the subscription plan to be considered.

The alternatives residents face, if the plan fails, are severe: Higher cost ambulance service or possibly the discontinuation of the municipal paramedic program.

We urge Buffalo Grove residents to return their surveys immediately. If they choose not to return them, they cannot complain when the alternatives are imposed.

Seldom is the average person given the chance to voice a meaningful opinion when it comes to public services. It would be a shame if Buffalo Grove residents ignore that chance.

We read with interest your editorial comment of April 13, 1976, titled "Curb Car Repair Cost."

We certainly agree that owning and operating an automobile is an expensive matter these days, and, as you point out, it has become more expensive over the past year.

In your April 13 editorial, you lead your readers to the conclusion that the increase in repair parts, caused by "anticompetitive practices in the sale and distribution of auto and light truck crash parts" is wholly responsible.

With this, we cannot agree.

You correctly point out that the FTC has been "studying" the distribution of crash parts for about 10 years. What was not mentioned, however, was the fact that during this time, automakers repeatedly have offered plans to rectify this situation, only to have these plans turned down as "unacceptable." Actually, one of the "solutions to the problem" accepted by the FTC in fact lead to an increase in crach parts prices.

JOBBER TOPICS magazine is a national business publication concerned with the distribution of products and services in the automotive aftermarket. By way of explanation, the "automotive aftermarket" includes all businesses involved in the production, distribution and sale of motor vehicle replacement parts, chemicals, additives, accessories, equipment and tools; businesses that service motor vehicles, and businesses that sell parts, accessories and other automotive products to wholesale and retail customers. In short, the aftermarket affects everything that happens to a motor vehicle from the time it leaves the production line until the day it reaches the scrap heap.

During the 54 years of its existence, Jobber Topics has been the "bible of the industry" as far as the independent automotive wholesaler has been concerned. Therefore, it may seem incongruous to take the side of the automakers in this matter.

But the fact remains, the best and most economical way to distribute automotive and light truck crash parts — not general service replacement parts — is through the carmakers' own distribution system.

WE OFFER IN support of this statement, galley proofs of a long-researched article on the subject which will be printed in the May issue of Jobber Topics. I think you will agree that the problems and the solutions are complex. Unfortunately, in most cases, only one side of the problem gets aired and many times unsupported statements of those with an ax to grind go unchallenged.

In this case, each of the "Big Three" automakers addressed themselves to specific charges made by State Farm Insurance and others. For example, General Motors' Michael Meehan refuted the State Farm Price index by pointing out that GM crash parts have not increased as much as the index states. Meehan correctly states that the index doesn't account for design and quality changes. State Farm says bumpers account for a 40 per cent rise in the index, but no allowance is made for federally mandated requirements which have added substantially to the cost of these parts.

Consequently, we feel these charges have been answered satisfactorily before committees of Congress and we are strengthened in our belief that the present distribution system is the best for all concerned.

As a 10-year resident of Arlington Heights and subscriber to The Herald, we are aware of your editorial pursuits of fairness and your willingness to look at all sides of a controversy. And, as a member of the automotive aftermarket industry, we at Jobber Topics feel it is important that all the facts be known.

Land ordinance supported

Naperville ordinance for Wheeling? Who will pay? The village would like the park and school districts to pay the total costs of the resulting lawsuits from this ordinance requiring developers to make donations to the park and school districts. The school and park districts only want to pay a portion. It's only our tax dollars that they are fighting over.

A compromise is needed or we, as residents of Wheeling, are the losers. The population of Wheeling has grown considerably in the last 10 years. More parks and recreational facilities are needed. Present programs need to be expanded. School populations are fluctuating, boundaries may have to be changed, learning centers expanded, extra classrooms found in some cases and eliminated in others and so on due to the previous housing boom. But then what happens when the housing industry comes out of its present slump?

THE BUILDERS and developers who are creating some of our problems should be absorbing some of these costs. They are reaping all the profits and we, the residents of Wheeling, are left with all the problems and bills.

The ordinance would require developers to donate land to the park district, and land or money to the school district. This ordinance is beneficial to all of Wheeling and should not become a political football. Who will pay?

Operators will stay with 911

It is important to correct a story carried by The Herald March 26 in which Hoffman Estates Police Chief John O'Connell was quoted as saying the telephone company is "trying to do away with operators by having the police do their work."

The story was a report of Chief O'Connell's opposition to implementing 911, the universal emergency number, in Hoffman Estates.

The telephone company is by no means trying, "to get out of the labor market," as O'Connell was reported to have said. The volume of emergency calls handled by operators is only two-tenths of 1 per cent of all operator-handled calls, or one call out of every 500.

Even with all emergency calls being directed to a 911 number dialed by callers themselves, it would not have a significant effect on the number of operators employed. Operators will continue to be available to provide backup emergency service wherever 911 is adopted.

Editorial blasted

Your editorial "Deadly Medical Peril" favoring house calls is a disservice to human patients and their physicians.

The vast majority of patients whose problem requires emergency or routine care are better treated in a well equipped office or emergency room than at home. The making of house calls would reduce the availability of physican services by decreasing the numbers of patients physicians could see. The fees would, as a result, also be prohibitive since the physician would have to charge on a time basis.

I cannot speak in regard to veterinary medicine, but you are quite correct that home treatment in most instances is "shoving medicine back into the dark ages."

Dorothy Meyer's column

It's the ants she hates

Although poets seem to like April a lot, it is not my favorite month.

Maybe it's just that the income tax deadline which I barely met is still too fresh in my mind. And I still have to put the house back together because I uprooted it, looking for one measly but vital bit of information.

Or maybe it's that April is the month of my birth, which probably seemed like a good idea at the time but observing it is sure getting monotonous after all these years. Besides, I'm at that awkward age — too young to retire but old enough to look forward to it.

OR IT COULD BE that I know I'm going to get gypped out of an hour's sleep later this month when we turn our clocks ahead. Neither my body nor my cat can understand the phenomenon, and it takes them six months to adjust — just in time to fiddle with the clocks in October.

But mostly it's the ants.

In March everybody gets excited because the swallows come back to San Juan Capistrano and the buzzards return to Hinckley, Ohio.

In April all that happens around here is that the ants come back to my kitchen.

I noted the date of their return this time, and if they appear on exactly the same date next year I'm going to submit that fact to Chase's Calendar of Annual Events. And to make it worthwhile I'll have a popcorn concession for the thousands who will gather to watch "The Ants Come Back to Dorothy's Kitchen."

THEY MUST BE the same ants every year because they sure know their way around, and the one that's getting gray at the temples has apparently clued them to all my tricks.

When I head for the closet to get the bug spray, they hide. If I try to step on them they hunker down in the low spots of my new embossed floor tile and only pretend that they're squashed.

Last year I read that cigarette smoke repels ants, so this year they turned up wearing teeny weeny "Yes, I mind if you smoke" buttons. If I put saucers of beer around they get drunk and rowdy, and when I put salt along their trails it only makes them thirsty for more beer.

They seem to prefer crumbs, but if I keep the floor swept clean they'll settle for cat food. Except if they have to climb all the way to the top of the refrigerator for it. However, Cat has announced that he'll starve before he'll eat on top of the refrigerator and I'd let him, but when he's hungry he never shuts up.

HIRING AN ANTEATER is a possibility I guess, but I don't know how to housebreak an anteater.

So I'm going to adopt a "live and let live" policy and wish the ants a Happy Easter even.

Happy to you, too.

Doctors bone up on innovations

by KURT BAER

Your doctor's diploma may be dated 1932, but that does not have to mean he is ignorant of the latest medical procedures.

Prompted by a new Illinois law that will make continuing medical education mandatory for physicians' license renewal, doctors and hospitals are starting up, or stepping up instructional programs for physicians.

The intent is not to retrain a radiologist as a gynecologist, or to turn pediatricians into brain surgeons. The classes are to brief physicians on new medical practices outside of their specialty so that they do not overlook a treatment out of ignorance.

"Ultimately the patient benefits by knowing that the docors are really up to date," says Dr. Andres Cornejo, education coordinator for the department of medicine at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

ALEXIAN BROTHERS started its continuing medical education program in January and currently is applying to have the seminar series accredited by the Illinois State Medical Society.

Typically, the hour-long presentations at Alexian Brothers deal with topics like "Techniques of Fetal Monitoring," "The Value of Diets in G.I. Disorders," or "Common Eye Diseases." The sessions are presented by doctors on the hospital staff as well as outside specialists.

Six or seven hour-long classes a month probably are not enough to inform doctors of all that they could or should know, Cornejo admits. "But we're progressing. It's more than we had before."

"The doctors benefit by being able to take advantage of the latest techniques. They can find out how to use them and when to use them.

"They obviously won't learn another doctor's specialty. But they will become more aware of the points that are relevant and ultimately the potential benefits. We have to understand what each other is talking about," Cornejo said.

IN NOVEMBER 1975, Illinois became one of nine states in the nation to pass a law requiring that doctors show evidence of continuing education as a requirement for renewal of their medical license. Specific rules are still being drafted by the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education.

Medical licenses in Illinois are renewed every two years on July 1 of odd-numbered years. In the past, relicensing has been a matter of routine since no additional professional or educational requirements had to be satisfied.

But all that will change with the new law, sometime before licenses are renewed July 1, 1977.

Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, began its accredited program of continuing medical education in January. The hospital's classes have been approved by the Illinois State Medical Society and the American Medical Assoc.

Prior to January, Lutheran General had noncredit sessions for doctors.

NORTHWEST COMMUNITY Hospital, Arlington Heights, also has classes in continuing education for its medical staff. Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, does not, but a doctors' education committee has been formed to make recommendations on ways the medical staff can get additional information.

Eight other states — Michigan, Ohio, Washington, Wisconsin, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland and New Mexico — have laws that make continuing education a condition for relicensing of physicians. Several other states are considering the measure.

In Wisconsin, the legislature tied malpractice relief to doctors participation in a continuing education program.

Daley shoo-in for delegate chief

The Illinois Democratic Convention Thursday in Springfield will probably result in Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley being elected chairman of the Illinois delegation to the national convention without controversy, local delegates said Friday.

The convention will convene at 1 p.m. Thursday in the St. Nicholas Hotel in Springfield to choose 14 at-large delegates and 11 at-large alternate delegates to be added to the 155-member delegation elected in the March 16 primary.

The at-large delegates will be divided among Presidential candidates in the same proportion that delegates were elected with seven going to Illinois Sen. Adlai Stevenson, five to former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter and one each uncommitted and pledged to Minnesota Sen. Hubert Humphrey.

State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, a Carter delegate from the Northwest suburb's 12th Congressional District, says he expects the Carter delegates and those pledged to Stevenson who are loyal to Daley to band together and elect Daley chairman.

"It would seem to be in the interests of the Carter campaign not to offend the Daley-Stevenson group," Pierce said.

State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, a Stevenson delegate from the 10th Congressional District, said he also expects to see little controversy about Daley's election.

Four years ago, Daley led an Illinois delegation to the Democratic National Convention and was ousted by a challenge from a rival group.

Political briefs

Township GOP debate

The proposed "political honesty amendments" to the Illinois Constitution will be debated at a meeting Thursday of the Wheeling Township Republican Organization.

The organization will meet at 8:15 p.m. at Corrado's restaurant, 310 W. Rand Rd., Arlington Heights. The meeting is open to the public.

Patrick Quinn, secretary of the Coalition for Political Honesty, backers of the amendments, will argue in favor of the amendments, while Richard Cowen, former Wheeling Township Republican Committeeman, will argue against them.

The amendments being proposed by the coalition would prohibit Illinois legislators from receiving their salaries a year in advance, would outlaw "double dipping" by legislators and would strengthen prohibitions against conflicts of interest.

The coalition has been circulating petitions to get the amendments on the Nov. 2 ballot. The coalition needs 15,000 more signatures between now and May 1 if they are to succeed.

Howlett to upgrade files

Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett, the Democratic candidate for governor, has announced he will adopt new procedures in his office to ensure that policemen can determine who owns certain license plates.

Howlett's action comes after complaints that the secretary of state's files are not up to date because of the annual license plate change and police cannot quickly learn the identity of a particular driver from the license plate.

Howlett said that within two weeks registrations of drivers which have not yet been entered into the computer will be sorted by license plate number to simplify the process of looking them up by hand.

He said the final solution to the problem of out-dated files would be five-year plates on Illinois cars, eliminating the need for the annual updating of files.

2 kidnapings unrelated, police sketches indicate

A Glencoe woman and a Woodfield shopper, both kidnaped and released unharmed this week in separate incidents, apparently were victims of different assailants, federal authorities said Friday.

Police composite drawings of the attacker of Muriel Fulton of Glencoe and Dale C. Fridlund of Wood Dale indicate the women were abducted by different men, although FBI authorities said Friday a connection between the two cases has not been ruled out entirely.

The police drawings were prepared Friday from descriptions provided by Mrs. Fulton, abducted Thursday, and Mrs. Fridlund, abducted Monday from the Woodfield shopping center in Schaumburg.

"At this point we still have an unknown suspect," FBI spokesman George Mandich said. "We don't have anything postivie.

HE ADDED THE FBI is only assisting local authorities because no federal violations have yet been determined in the cases.

However, federal and local police still are investigating a possible link between the two abductions and the disappearance of a California business woman whose abandoned sports car was found in Rolling Meadows late Monday.

"The only federal violation we have so far is that Pontiac taken from California and ending up in Illinois," Mandich said.

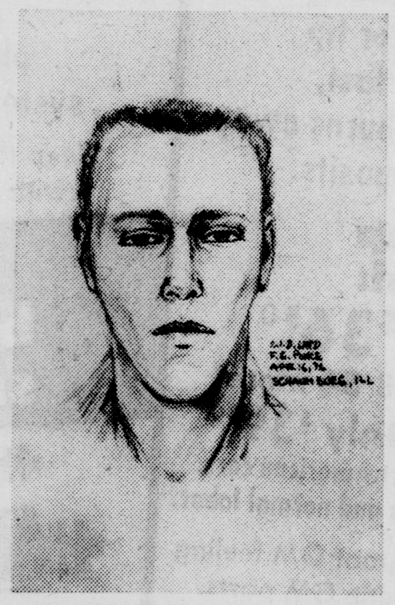
The blood-stained 1974 Pontiac Firebird belonging to Evelyn Axlerod, 58, of Bel Air, was found by Rolling Meadows police parked in the northbound lanes of New Wilke Road north of Golf Road. Mrs. Axlerod, owner of the A and F Trucking Co., has been missing since April 8.

Authorities said the kidnapings also may be linked to several attempted robberies at Woodfield Monday and at an Arlington Heights Open Pantry store on Tuesday.

Mrs. Fulton was taken from her Glencoe home Thursday and forced to drive to a Chicago bank to wirthdraw money for her assailant before being released. Mrs. Fridlund was kidnaped Monday from the Woodfield parking lot, and made to drive near her home before her attacker freed her, taking her 1971 Buick convertible.

First reports Thursday said the Buick was seen near Mrs. Fulton's home shortly before her abduction, but authorities said Friday the reports were erroneous.

The car has not yet been found.



THIS DRAWING of a man who assaulted a Woodfield security guard Monday was released by the FBI Friday. The same man may also have kidnaped a Wood Dale woman from the Schaumburg shopping center the same Monday.

Care to take on a canine 'Jaws'?

PRINCE, a German shepherd attack dog, lunges on his leash during a training session at K-9 Security in Northbrook. Use of attack dogs is growing rapidly, says Bill Taylor, Prince's trainer.

Prince is a canine Jaws.

A German shepherd trained to do just one thing — bite and maim any intruder stupid enough to trespass on the premises he patrols.

He is an attack dog with the power to tear open a man's throat or shred an arm.

Prince is the property of trainer Bill Taylor, 37, and National K-9 Security, 3375 Milwaukee Ave., Northbrook, one of the area's largest suppliers of attack dogs with 90 shepherds and Doberman pinschers in its kennel.

SOME 40 CLIENTS — car dealers, construction companies, manufacturers and warehouse operators — rent attack dogs from K-9 Security, and the number is growing.

Dogs do more than burglar alarms to keep people out of somewhere they do not belong. And in many instances they are more reliable than a human guard, Taylor said.

"At one time or another everybody has been bitten by a dog. They know that dog bites hurt and they don't know what a dog will do. Psychologically they are a deterrent to keep people out of the property," he said.

In the 2½ years that Taylor has spent in the attack dog business, there have been only two break-ins at property patroled by his dogs. "In both cases, men went to the hospital," Taylor said.

The dogs are not trained killers, although they will fight to the death if necessary.

"IF A PERSON QUITS resisting, quits fighting, the dog will sit and guard them until morning," Taylor said.

Dogs are dropped off at their job sites thoughout the metropolitan area in the evening. K-9 Security uses flatbed trucks with 24 small wooden cages on the back to transport the animals.

After the dog is let loose, the premises are padlocked to guard against entry by an unknowing employe. In the morning the dogs are picked up and returned to the kennel. The cost is just under $1 per hour per dog.

It takes seven to 12 weeks to professionally train an attack dog — a process Taylor describes as "reinforcing" the dogs' instinct to bite.

"They have to be taught to work by themselves. There's no one around to give them orders," he said.

IN THE TRAINING sessions, a heavily-padded man moves toard the dog threateningly, waving a club or rubber hose as if he planned to beat the animal. Taylor calls this "agitation."

A second trainer holding the dog on a leash urges the animal to lunge at the attacker, driving his teeth into the man's thick padding.

"When a dog first starts to attack, he won't do it right. He'll take a lot of small bites instead of really digging in and holding on," Taylor said.

The dogs are taught to charge at intruders, adding to their already fearsome attack powers. Even wounded dogs will keep coming at its quarry. Knives, clubs and even a hand gun are often useless protection against the attacking dog. "It's pretty hard to hit a charging dog, even with a gun," Taylor said.

Taylor has spent 23 years as a dog trainer — most of that time working at obedience training. But the attack dog business is "exciting," he said, and as long as security problems continue, the business should be good.

NIU president warns of cuts

The president of Northern Illinois University has warned that budget cuts may be in the offing at the university if more money is not forthcoming from the state.

"If the state's funding for higher education does not increse in the next year or two, it seems clear that we will have to reduce our obligations and educational services," Pres. Richard J. Nelson said this week in outlining the university's budget crunch.

"During the next year, we are going to have to take a very close look at what we are doing and make some decisions as to what we can do without," he said.

NORTHERN'S CURRENT budget appropriation of about $45 million was $1.1 million less than expected, which resulted in cancellation of the summer intersession program, a freeze on most hiring, and the closing of the campus during the winter holiday to reduce utility costs.

For the fiscal year beginning July 1, the university is faced with more cuts. The university has asked for $50.6 million to maintin quality education services and cover price increases and costs of operating a new library which is scheduled to open in the fall.

But the Illinois Board of Higher Education has already cut the request to $49.8 million and Governor Daniel Walker's budget trimmed it to $47.3 million.

The governor's budget provides for a 5 per cent increase, but 63 per cent of that increase will be absorbed by salary raises and increased utility costs.

Gymnastics stars to compete at West

SOCKS FAN. Buffalo Grove two-miler Joe Shields recovers after race against Wheeling and displays socks he wore to keep his hands and arms warm. No one laid a glove on the Bison sophomore during the race, either, as he won with a time of 10:4.9.

A dandy dozen of the best high school gymnasts will gather for some friendly competition Saturday, April 24 at Maine West High School.

Foremost among the gymnasts taking part in the second annual National High School All-Around Invitational is Bart Conner, a senior at Niles West High School who passed up the Illinois state meet in favor of international competition.

The choice was a wise one for the 18-year-old all-arounder. He established himself as one of the finest young gymnasts in the world, outpointing a select field of world class performers in a meet last month in New York City.

Conner now seems assured of a place on the United States Olympic team.

Conner outpointed the 12-man field in last year's NHSAAI. But, to the gymnasts and the organizers of the meet, that is not what is important in this unique event.

"The purpose of this meet," said Sid Drain, the gymnastics coach at Maine West and the meet director, "is for the kids to compete with, not against, each other.

"I think we showed last year that they can compete in a spirit of friendship and camaraderie."

The 12 gymnasts, coming from all over the United States, will be brought in a few days before the meet so they will be able to develop friendships among themselves.

They will be housed together and take part in a number of activities, all with the intent of building a rapport that goes beyond gymnastics.

The meet itself, to be held at Maine West with the opening ceremonies set for 7:15 p.m., will be the culmination o fthe weekend's activities.

Besides Conner, there will be three other gymnasts from Illinois. They include Craig Martin of Maine South, the 1976 Illinois state all-around champion, Breck Grigas of state champion Hinsdale Central and Danny Muenz, the all-arounder from Hersey High School.

Also among the 12 on hand will be Ron Galimore, an extraordinary free ex man from Florida and Mario McCutcheon from New York, along with Conner the most widely recruited high school gymnast in the nation.

Tickets to the NHSAAI are available at schools throughout the Chicago suburban area or by writing Ed Zimmer, Porter Equipment Company, 9555 Irving Park Rd., Schiller Park, Ill. 60176.

All tickets are $3.00 and will also be available at the door the night of the meet.

Warrants issued for arrest of 3 hockey players

Warrants were issued Friday night for the arrest of three Philadelphia Flyers — Don Saleski, Joe Watson and Mel Bridgman — in connection with on-ice incidents Thursday during a National Hockey League playoff game with the Toronto Maple Leafs.

The three flyers surrendered themselves to a downtown Toronto police station.

Earlier, a police spokesman said the three would be taken to police headquarters for fingerprinting and photographs after making statements at the downtown station house.

The players were expected to be released on their own recognizance, pending an appearance in court Saturday morning.

Ontario Attorney-General Roy McMurtry earlier announced the warrants would be issued following a penalty-filled 5-4 win Thursday by the Leafs, cutting the Flyers' lead in the best-of-seven quarterfinal Stanley Cup series to 2-1.

One incident involved a policeman allegedly being hit behind a penalty box at the Maple Leaf Gardens.

McMurtry said the warrants issued against the three spelled out the following charges:

—Watson: two charges of assaulting a police officer, two charges of common assault and one dangerous weapons charge (a hockey stick).

—Saleski: two charges of common assault and one dangerous weapons charge.

—Bridgman: one charge of assault causing bodily harm.

The assault charges carry maximum penalties of five years and the dangerous weapons charge carries a minimum of two years and a maximum of five years.

McMurtry said he did not expect the three players would be jailed during any part of the procedures Saturday morning, which would allow them to play in the fourth game of the series scheduled for Saturday night.

Hardwick sets pace in Firestone

Billy Hardwick of Louisville, Ky. held the lead after 40 games Friday in the $125,000 Firestone Tournament of Champions in Akron, Ohio. Hardwick had compiled a 12-4 match game record and 9,111 pins in the bowling feature that had eight more games scheduled later Friday evening. Others in the top 10 with eight games remaining were Don McCune, Jim Godman, Dick Weber, Gary Dickinson, Marshall Holman, Roy Buckley, George Pappas, Carmen Salvino and Tommy Hudson. The five top bowlers will meet this afternoon on ABC-TV.

January leads Green by one shot

Don January, a droll Texan who returned to the tour last year after being retired for 2½ years, fired a four-under-par 68 Friday to wrestle the lead away from Hubert Green at the halfway point of the $225,000 Tournament of Champions in Carlsbad, Calif.

January, 46, who qualified here by winning the San Antonio-Texas Open in a playoff with Larry Hinson in October, finished the day with a 36-hole total of 139, five under, for a one-shot advantage over Green, the first-day leader who carded a 71.

Australian Bruce Crampton shot a 70 and was all alone in third place with a 141 total, followed by U.S. Open champion Lou Graham, 69, and J. C. Snead, 70, both at 142.

January put together nines of 32-36 in a round that included six birdies and two bogeys in the tournament sponsored by Mutual of New York. He sank putts of 12, 5, 15 and 10 feet for four of his birdies in the first eight holes. In fact, he started out with six straight one-putt greens.

AL to expand despite warning

In direct defiance to commissioner Bowie Kuhn, the American League announced Friday it intended to go ahead with its plans to expand to Toronto and that it was withdrawing its previous offer of a compromise plan for Washington.

Lee MacPhail, president of the American League, said the AL had "legal and moral responsibilities to Toronto" and that the commissioner had no authority to interfere in the expansion plans.

On March 26, the AL voted to expand to Seattle and Toronto for next season but on April 1 Kuhn blocked the proposed move to Toronto, unless the AL first made some suitable provision for baseball in Washington.

Earlier Friday, Kuhn announced he was dissatisfied with the AL's efforts to provide a team for Washington and was giving the National League two weeks to finalize a plan for expanding to both Washington and Toronto. The AL had presented Kuhn with a compromise plan for Washington whereby a certain number of games would be scheduled there next season but the commissioner was reported to be dissatisfied with the idea.

Bears sign Big Ten star Marek

Bill Marek, the Big Ten Conference's all-time leading scorer with 278 points, signed as a free agent with the Chicago Bears, the club announced Friday.

Marek, a high school star at St. Rita in Chicago, rushed for 3,709 yards at the University of Wisconsin during his career. He holds 24 Wisconsin offense records in his 31 games with the Badgers. At 5-foot-8, he weighs 188 pounds.

Also signed as a free agent was cornerback-wide receiver Clarence Reece, a brother of Cincinnati Bengals' cornerback Danny Reece. Reece, who attended Southern California, has had trials with the Houston Oilers and the Saskatchewan Rough Riders of the Canadian Football League, after dropping out of USC in 1973.

Both will attend the Bears' three-day indoctrination at Lake Forest, Ill., at the end of this month.

Skating show coming to Twin Ice

Some of the world's leading amateur figure skaters will congregate at Randhurst Twin Ice Arena, Mount Prospect to take part in the Chicago Figure Skating Club's third annual "Stars on Ice Revue" on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, May 14-16, according to Club President Joseph L. Serafine.

Among the U.S. National, Olympic and World Team championship skaters already scheduled to skate at the show's five performances are: Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner, youthful teenagers from California who are the 1976 National Senior Pairs champions and competitors on the U.S. Team in the 1976 Winter Olympics and World Championships; David Santee of Park Ridge, Illinois — 1976 National Senior Men's Silver Medalist and 6th in recent Olympics and 5th in World competition; Terry Kubicka of California — 1976 National Senior Men's Gold Medalist and competitor in the 1976 Olympics and World Championhips; Michelle Ford and Glenn Patterson from Arizona — alternates on the U.S. 1976 Olympic and World Team and third place finishers in National Gold Dance competition.

Serafine said that other prominent amateur figure skaters are expected to adjust schedules to participate in the Ice Revue, with details to be announced shortly.

In addition to guest performers, more than 200 talented local area skaters will take part in the colorful 2½-hour family show which involves lavish production numbers featuring the story of "Peter Pan" and a special "Bi-Centennial Salute." The show cast includes competitive skaters who are members of the Chicago Figure Skating Club, which is headquartered at Randhurst, and students of all ages from Randhurst's Ice Skating School.

The Ice Revue is being directed by Jan Serafine, CFSC member and a teaching professional who is a former U.S. Canadian and International Gold Medalist.

Performances in the 2,500-seat Arena are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, May 14, 15 and 16, and at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday afternoon. A limited number of reserved-seat tickets priced at $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for children 12 and under are still available daily at the Arena from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. or from members of the Chicago Figure Skating Club.

The Chicago Figure Skating Club is a member of the United States figure Skating Association and a not-for-profit organization dedicated to developing amateur figure skaters and the sport of figure skating. Part of the proceeds from the Ice Revue helps support the club's many activities.

Randhurst Twin Ice Arena is located on Kensington Road at the southeast corner of the Randhurst Shopping Center parking lot, near the intersection of Routes 12 and 83 in Mount Prospect.

TAI BABILONIA and Randy Gardner, 1976 National Senior Pairs champions and competitors on the United States team in the 1976 Winter Olympics and World championships, will be among the featured performers May 14-16 in the third annual "Stars on Ice Revue" at the Randhurst Twin Ice Arena.

Saxon trackmen trim Lake Park

Schaumburg beat Lake Park, 75-48, in a track meet curtailed by bad weather Thursday, but before the rains came Saxon juniors Mark Seltzer and Steve Knudson managed to turn in their best efforts of the outdoor season.

Running on the cinders at Lake Park, Seltzer clocked 2:01.8 for a victory in the 880, and Knudson blazed to a win in the 100-dash in :10.3. Other notable Schaumburg firsts came from Brad Crawford in the discus (140-11) and junior Mike Christy, who won the shot put (47-6¾) and the long jump (19-5½). The Saxons also took the 440- and 880-relays.

Buffalo Grove fell to Libertyville in a triangular meet Thursday, but the Bison had enough to beat Carmel. Bison soph Joe Schmidt won the mile in 4:37.2 and Joe Shields took first in the two-mile (10:09.6). Junior Ben Orcutt was a winner in the 100 (:10.7) and also finished third in the 440 (:52.8). Sophomore high jumper Bob Dowling reached 6-0 for the first time.

Black Hawks try again Sunday against Montreal

The skating was casual and the pressure high Friday when the Chicago Black Hawks began drills to try to avoid elimination from the Stanley Cup playoffs by the Montreal Canadians Sunday night.

The Canadians grabbed a 3-0 lead in games in the best-of-seven quarterfinal series Thursday night when Guy Lafleur scored with 13 seconds to play to give the Canadians a 2-1 triumph. Earlier Montreal won on home ice by scores of 4-0 and 3-1.

The fourth game, which could wind up the series if Montreal wins, will be on Hawk ice Sunday at 7:30.

Lafleur's shot wiped out a stellar comeback by the Hawks which produced a tie with 2:11 to play when Pit Martin scored from 25 feet. Until then Chicago had shown expert and adept defense, forcing the Canadians to shoot from long range most of the time. When Martin scored the partisan fans could see a win approaching.

"It was the Hawks' best game," said Montreal goalie Ken Dryden. "I was surprised when Martin shot because I didn't think he had that good an angle. It looked like he and Phil Russell were skating together and then Martin broke off to his right and I took my eye off him for a second to watch Russell. But Martin made a good shot."

Hawks' coach Billy Reay agreed with Dryden that the Hawks played a good game if not their best of the series.

"I thought we played pretty well in the last game in Montreal," Reay said. "Thursday we were in the game all the way and we had a number of good scoring chances. But we're just not scoring goals.

"It's pretty tough to win when you get only two goals in three games. But we'll be giving it a shot Sunday."

The Hawks have not beaten the Canadians in a playoff series since 1962, losing three finals series and one semifinal to Montreal in the past 10 years. But the Hawks had to be underdogs for this series since Montreal scored a league record 58 victories and 127 points during the regular season, compared to 32 wins and 82 points for Chicago. The Hawks had the lowest number of points of any of the eight quarterfinal teams.

Montreal Coach Scotty Bowman flew his team home from Chicago's summerlike heat immediately after the Thursday night game and the Canadians will return, they hope, to wind up the series, either tonight or Sunday morning.

Laura Stern jumps into international spotlight

For baseball fans in the past, Chicago plus Third Base has equalled Ron Santo. The magic formula is being computed again, but this time, there's a little horsin' around.

U.S. Olympic Equistrian Team Member and one of the country's top horsemen, Wally Holly, trains Santo's new thoroughbred horse, — appropriately named Third Base.

You can feel the Holly magic sweep through the Blue Ribbon Horse Complex in Northbrook as this soft-spoken Virginian gives his directives to his 14-year-old winning show rider and 1980 U.S. Olympic hopeful, Laura Stern of Arlington Heights.

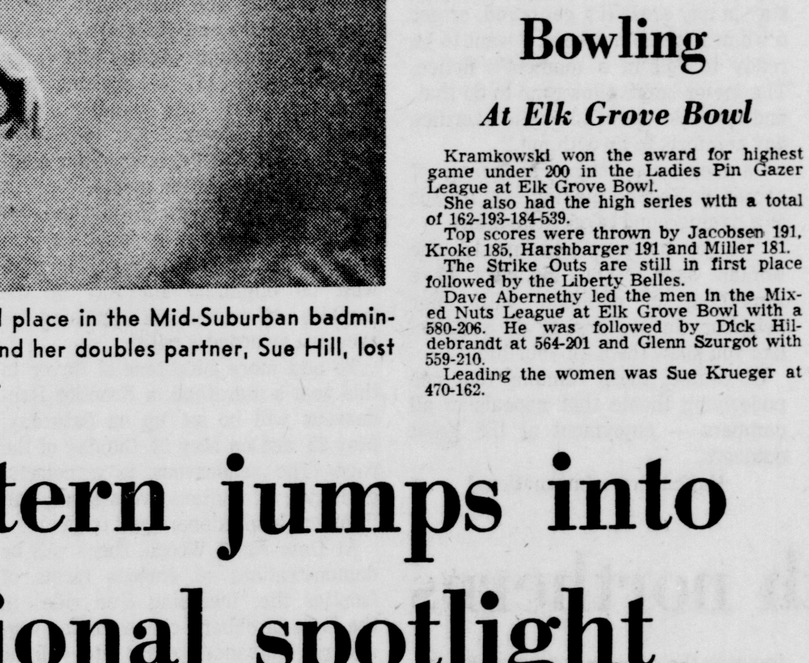
The talented youngster has the largest indoor arena in the Midwest filled with admirers as she skillfully guides Third Base's massive hunk of muscle over a course of 12 to 16 high jumps.

Although Laura has been riding two and one-half years, her natural ability caught the eye of Holly and Santo while participating in Open Jumping and Grand Prix competition in Barrington Hills.

United Airlines also took interest, learning of Holly's desire to send Laura and three other youngsters to the Prix de Villes of North America Team Competition in Cleveland, Ohio, April 24-25.

Within two days, this junior jumper team was equipped with horses donated by private individuals and trainers with United contributing horse coolers, banners, shirts, crests and hats.

The newly-formed United team will compete with 25 other junior jumper teams throughout the United States, Canada, Puerto Rico and Mexico. The event will be governed by Olympic rules.



LEG UP FOR LAURA. Former Chicago Cub third baseman Ron Santo gives Laura Stern of Arlington Heights a boost into the saddle of his horse "Third Base" as trainer Wally Holly steadies the reins.

CLEAN SLATE. Cunningham-Reilly store manager Bill Flanigan awaits entries for the annual fishing contest behind the counter of the store at 45 S. Dunton St. in Arlington Heights.

It's the only game in town

Fish contest hits stride

Fishing contests sporadically pop into vogue during the height of salmon runs on Lake Michigan or at a one-shot day or weekend tournament.

Rarely do the dates seem to fall during summer vacations when anglers can completely devote all their time to hanging a winner on the results board.

Many contests are confining.

They tell exactly where to fish, when and what requirements both the fisherman and his catch must meet.

Some stipulate a residency requisite while others demand a black and white photograph to accompany the entry for final verification. In big-money contests, it is sometimes mandatory to take a polygraph test.

The red tape involved is often longer than the fish or the paycheck. There's always the fear that someone will walk into contest headquarters will walk into contest headquarters with a 50-pound muskie and say he took it out of the Des Plaines River.

Cunningham-Reilly Inc. at 45 S. Dunton St. In Arlington Heights as quietly conducted a fishing contest for 10 consecutive years and there's never been a hassle.

'Our rules are very uncomplicated," Ralph McCullagh, one ofhte sporting good store's managers said.

"The only requirement we have is that people must register with us before they are eligible for the contest."

After an angler has signed up for the derby, he may enter any of the fish he catches from now until Oct. 31.

Gift certificates in varying amounts will be awarded to the top three places in each of the categories for biggest smallmouth bass, largemouth bass, bluegill, crappie, coho salmon, perch, northern pike muskie and walleye.

"There are no restraining boundaries," McCullagh said. "A gentleman on a business trip to Puget Sound entered a coho salmon one year that won that division. We've also has muskies entered here from Canada."

When a potential contest entry is caught, the angler must bring the fish into Cunningham-Reilly to be officially weighed.

"We realize a fish will suffer aa $25 weight loss during transportation, but that makes the rules fair for everyone," McCullagh said.

"We'd also like to remind people that we're not a fish market and that they should use discretion when bringing their fish in here."

The top prizes are for the largest northern pike, muskie, walleye or small mouth bass brought to the counter. Each of the winners receives gift certificate while the runnerup collects $15 and third place $10.

"Over the years, we've really had some nice fish come in here," McCullagh said. "We've had a 25-pound muskie, an eight pound northern, a two-pound perch and a five-pound largemouth bass which are all pretty big fish for around here."

Every angler will start with a clean slate since no fish have been registered since the March 1 contest opening date.

''That really surprises me," McCullagh said. "Usually we have some good fish by now. People are usually getting fish through the ice when we open the contest in March but with the weather we've been having, the boaters should be coming in with something pretty soon."

Canoeists register for Des Plaines Marathon

Almost 2,000 paddlers in 1,000 craft will celebrate America's 200th birthday using transportation in vogue with the Chicago area in 1776 at the 19th Annual Des Plaines River Canoe Marathon Sunday, May 23.

The marathon, the largest canoe race in the nation, draws paddlers from all over the Midwest. The race is sponsored by the Illinois Paddling Council, a statewide not-for-profit association of canoeists and kayakists, and the Forest Preserve Districts of Cook and Lake counties.

Paddlers move their boats 19 miles on the Des Plaines River from Oak Spring Road in Libertyville to Dam No. 2 in the city of Des Plaines. En route, the contestants encounter, dams, obstacles, a few spills and pulled muscles.

Participants will compete in 20 separate classes: Boys and Girls (under 14) — cruising canoe and aluminum canoe; Jr. Men (14 to 19) — cruising and aluminum; Jr. Women — cruising and aluminum; Jr. Mixed (male and female) — cruising and aluminum; Men — cruising and aluminum; Women — cruising and aluminum; Mixed Tandem (male and female) — cruising and aluminum; Adult-Child (over 29 and under 15) — cruising and aluminum; C-1 (one paddler); K-1 (one-paddler kayak); K-2 (two paddler kayak); and Press class for competing members of the media.

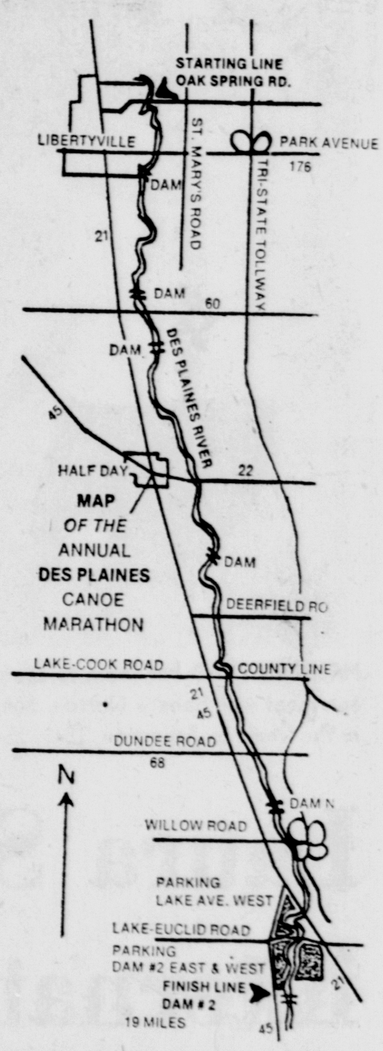
In addition, people can float the river three or more in a canoe or in a non-conforming craft just for fun, with no eligibility for any of the trophies. All participants finishing the race are awarded a patch.

To add more Bicentennial flavor to this year's marathon, a Frontier Rendezvous will be set up on Saturday, May 22, and on May 23, the day of the race. The rendezvous is a colorful gathering of Indians, voyageurs, militiamen, buckskinners and traders.

At Dam No. 1 Woods, there will be demonstrations of various facets of frontier life, including free rides in the huge birchbark canoes of the voyageurs. Entrance to the site will be from Dundee Rd., immediately east of the river.

The marathon culminates activities of Illinois' Clean Streams Week, an observation initiated by the Cook County Clean Streams Committee to call attention to the beauty and the recreational potential of the area's streams and to reinforce the need for clean streams in our daily lives.

Applications for the marathon are available from Illinois Paddling Council, 2316 Prospect, Evanston, Ill. 60201. Forms must be returned to the registrar by mail. Registration is limited to the first 1,000 craft.



Campers

Prime motivation is escape outdoors

by VIC WATIA

Ask the first camper you bump into what his or her reasons are for taking to the great outdoors and you're liable to get a variety of answers.

Campers are about as diversified in feelings over the hobby as fishermen and hunters are in pursuit of their favorite fish or game animal. Also, their preference for camping equipment or recreation vehicles is as varied as anglers' fishing rods and reels and hunters' guns and shells.

Many have favorite camp spots they constantly return to. Others enjoy the never-ending adventures of new, unexplored areas. More enjoy camping-fishing or camping-hunting, capitalizing on both.

Many want only the bare essentials and enjoy roughing it in the wilderness. Others want all the modern conveniences — right down to color television and air-conditioning.

Some prefer to belong to camping clubs, proudly displaying membership patches and patches of their travels on their jackets. Others are closed-mouth, keeping a new-found camping spot as secret as a fisherman's honey hole.

Many keep their investments at a minimum while others go all out on purchases.

Regardless, there are some motivations which generally appear to represent the overall hobby.

Besides a general fondness for the outdoors, the desire to escape urban living runs high.

Camping often is a family hobby. It's a chance to put aside the week's worries and problems and try to capture togetherness that's missed between frantic work and school schedules.

It's an opportunity for long conversations, ane endless picnic or finding something simple that all can enjoy together, such as an invigorating hike in the woods.

Increasing living costs proves to be a big factor. "I'm not really an avid camper," one man remarked, "if I could afford not to, I probably wouldn't. It's just that on my salary, with a wife and our kids, I could never afford to take a long vacation if we didn't camp out. I couldn't even afford many weekend trips."

Camping definitely can be cheaper, as long as one doesn't purchase a $30,000 motor home with only two weeks vacation a year to enjoy it. Why would someone invest so much money in such a rig, equipped with all the comforts of a house?

Freedom appears to be the answer. The luxury motor homes still allow the camper who can afford them the freedom to move about as desired. In peak seasons there may be full campgrounds, but with minimal advance planning such problems can be avoided.

"As long as I've got the money, cost is no object," one man said. "I don't like schedules and I don't like to commit myself on how long I'm going to stay in any area. If I get bored, or get a whim to go somewhere, I want to be ready to roll in a moment's notice. The motor home allows me to do that, and my wife doesn't have to sacrifice any comforts to go with me."

Campers also enjoy a feeling of camaraderie, and making new friends at a campground takes little effort.

"I enjoy the people the most," one woman said. "You instantly have something in common with your neighbor. In no time at all you feel like you knew them all your life."

Of course, there remains that one underlying theme that appeals to all campers — enjoyment of the great outdoors.

Round Lake stocked with northerns

Round Lake in Lake County was stocked Tuesday with 220,000 newly-hatched northern pike "fry."

The one-half-inch-long brown fish are part of a shipment of 300,000 the Illinois Dept. of Conservation is obtaining from the National Fish Hatchery in Genoa, Wis.

The entire shipment will be transported to Rockford by Department fishery biologist Gary Erickson via automobile, whereupon 80,000 of the fish will be relayed to fishery biologist Robert Dunn for stocking in the newly-constructed Schy-Rush Lake at Rushville in downstate Schuyler County.

Erickson will then take his remaining cargo to Round Lake Beach and stock them in vegetation along the shallows of Round Lake. The tiny brown "fry" are expected to grow as much as 1⁶ inches in four months. Northern pike must be 24 inches in length before they can legally be taken by fishermen.

The day-old northerns are shipped in plastic bags that contain a small amount of water and pure oxygen. The six plastic bags contining the fry fit into a box about 18 inches on each side, Erickson said.

The fish are placed into the lake only after tempering to acclimate them to the 45 degree temperature of the lake water. First, the bags containing the fish are placed into the water. Then the fish are dumped into the lake when the water temperature in the bags drops to within a couple of degrees of the lake water temperature.

Last September, all the fish in Round Lake were killed in order that rough fish could be eliminated and to improve the success of sport fish.

Largemouth bass, redear sunfish, and bluegill have already been stocked in Round Lake with channel catfish planned for later this year. Biologists anticipate opening the lake for fishing in 1978.

Ask Andy

Cows take time in digesting food

Andy sends the Encyclopedia Britannica's Yearbook of Science and the Future to David Fitts, 10, of Halifax, Va., for his question:
DO COWS REALLY HAVE THREE STOMACHS?

Most everyone feels that if you are going to do a job, you should do it right the first time. Andy's friendly cow neighbor agrees with this philosophy, but the cow also feels that some things should not be rushed. Take eating, for example. Cows not only take their time eating, but they eat every meal in two stages. This may not be a good idea for humans, but it gets the job done just right for cows and other ruminants.

Animals go about eating in a number of different ways. Some take bit bites and swallow their food whole, while others take small nibbles and chew for a bit. The cow belongs to a large group of animals that does both. These animals are called ruminants, and they include goats, sheep, giraffes, moose and deer, to name just a few.

These animals perform their mealtime magic of eating food twice because of a special kind of stomach — one that has four compartments. This four-chambered stomach is very handy, as it allows them to eat quickly and chew later. For animals that live in the wild this means they can rush through a meal and then be on the lookout for predators as they rechew and digest their dinner.

True, the cow does not have many predators hanging around the barnyard. But then cattle have not always been domesticated animals. At one time they, too, had to be careful while eating to keep from being attacked.

A trip through a cow's stomach begins when the cow picks up a mouthful of hay or grass and chews it a bit to moisten it with saliva. After swallowing, the mouthful passes through a long tube called the esophagus into the first stomach compartment. This first compartment, the rumen, is a large chamber where many mouthfuls are stored, squashed and mashed around.

The food then passes into the second compartment — the reticulum. Here it is mixed with moisture and formed into soft masses called cuds. The rumen and reticulum contain millions of microscopic creatures that begin the process of digestion. Our stomachs do not contain these wee beasties, which is why we cannot digest grass or hay.

After a bit the cow brings a cud back from the reticulum into her mouth where she carefully chews and chews. Her large flat-topped teeth grind up the cud and mix it with saliva. Now it is ready to be swallowed a second time.

The second swallow sends the cud, which is now more liquid than solid, back into the rumen and then into the reticulum. From here it passes into the third and fourth chambers — the omasum and the abomasum. Water is removed in the omasum and digestive juices are added in the abomasum. From the abomasum the mixture passes into the intestine where the process of digestion is completed.

Money and the right friends can buy you the country club life

by Jill Bettner

As with most bromides, there's a dose of unquestionable truth in the old saying, "Money can't buy happiness."

Enough of it, however, along with the proper social credentials, can buy an unhurried Saturday morning golf game on a perfectly manicured course, drinks from a bartender who knows your preference and invitations to all the "right" parties.

These are a few of the privileges of the well-heeled and well-connected who can afford and are invited to belong to the posh and oh, so private, country clubs in the Northwest suburbs.

Country clubs generally are pictured as playgrounds of the rich, the socially prominent, the "beautiful people." They conjure up images of nattily dressed executives tooling around in golf carts with a shaker of martinis in the back, of ladies' luncheons and fashion shows, of lavish holiday balls and elegant dances on starlit summer nights.

The stereotypes may be unrealistic, but the true picture of the world of country clubs in the Northwest suburbs is hard to discern.

At private clubs where members pay for the right to rub the shoulders of their own choosing, it's difficult to get an inside look.

"We're a private club. We don't want publicity," said the manager of Hillcrest Country Club, Long Grove.

The reception at two of the other private clubs in the area, however, was more gracious. The managers of the Inverness Golf Club and Rolling Green Country Club, Arlington Heights, agreed to talk about the good life they say exists beyond the signs that read "Members Only."

For "clubbers" in the Northwest suburbs, the luxury of having a retreat from the pressures involved in earning a living and raising a family must be worth about $5,000 in initiation fees, monthly dues of $100 and up, sometimes extra charges for pleasures like using the swimming pool and even special assessments for redecorating the clubhouse or building new facilities.

Most of the attractions of these private playgrounds are available at public country clubs, yet both Inverness and Rolling Green are "full up" with waiting lists of families eager to join.

"I suppose people want to join for the same reasons they want to be in any other club like a fraternity or a sorority," said William Fleeter, Inverness Golf Club manager. "It's a social outlet, and of course, golf is the big attraction — that's what really draws members. Here they don't have to worry about the crowds you get on public or semi-private courses. They can play just about any time they feel like it."

Besides being able to pick a tee-off time, private country clubbers can also choose with whom they will associate. Donald Zienty, manager of Rolling Green Country Club, said membership rules are designed to ensure a congenial, somewhat homogenous group.

Although he declined to spell out what membership restrictions are at Rolling Green, Zienty did say any prospective member must be sponsored by two existing members and submit to a home interview by an admissions committee.

Zienty added he and many other managers of the more than 6,000 country clubs across the country are "feeling a lot of pressure" to get rid of membership restrictions, but he considers certain rules necessary for the harmony of a club.

"Who would want to be in a place where they weren't wanted?" he asked. "A lot of our people entertain business clients here, but I think the basic reason they join is for the comfortable atmosphere — to play golf and enjoy themselves with people who have similar interests."

Fleeter agreed, saying, "It's nice to walk into a place where everybody knows you. People belong to a particular club because they have the same social interests — that's natural. One club couldn't be right for everybody."

Both clubs draw most of their members from the Northwest suburbs, but each is unique and appeals to a different clientele.

Fleeter described Inverness as a somewhat quiet, amost sedate club, where members prefer to spend more time on the golf course than on the dance floor.

Golf is the raison d'etre for most country clubs.

THE

by Gerry Kern

They used to be called soothsayers, oracles, prophets, even witches. Today they're called psychics and their supernatural mission is still the same — foretelling the future.

No, they don't watch the pattern tea leaves make when they float to the bottom of the cup. If they use a crystal ball, it's mostly for show. You won't find them in gypsy wagons on the outskirts of town, dodging the sheriff or the preacher.

Today's brand of fortune tellers looks like everybody else. One could live next door for that matter. But some things haven't changed. They still make predictions and people still listen to them.

Man has always wondered about the future. The Greeks had their oracles who listened to the babbling of brooks and the rustle of leaves in the wind, believing the sound was the voice of Zeus. The Romans, efficient people they were, maintained an entire bureaucracy to record "omens" so the future would reveal itself in the present.

Today people like Jeanne Dixon, the most publicized psychic in America, makes the future "known" to the powerful in Washington and the rest of us in yearly newspaper accounts of her predictions. In Chicago, psychic Irene Hughes leads the way and probably is the most publicized fortune teller locally.

But there are hundreds of lesser known psychics in Chicago and its suburbs and if you're willing to pay the price, $5 to $20 on the average, you can get a private reading with a psychic of "proven ability."

There are no psychics in the yellow pages. They usually limit their advertising to business cards left wherever they go. They entertain with their skills of perception, ESP games with cards and sidelights of palmisty, astrology and other ancient arts of the occult at restaurants, clubs or social functions. And that introduces them to their private clients whose faith and fascination are deeper.

It's a business by appointment only, but with a little asking around, a psychic can be found without too much trouble. The doubts are always the same: Are they accurate and do they really tell anything? A lot of them have been wrong throughout history but they've been right enough times to keep people interested.

The only way to find out for sure is to try it.

Many of those I visited displayed an uncanny ability to reveal bits and scraps of information about their subject (me), information which demonstrated either ESP ability or darn good perception.

Few could give specifics about the future, tending instead to issue general likelihoods. Those who go out on a limb risk out-and-out contradiction or, in fewer cases, vindication of their fortune telling ability.

In most cases the inspiration or power to give a reading or predict the future comes from the psychic's "faith in God." Religion has a big part to play in fortune telling since God controls the universe and a direct line to him can't hurt.

Molly, Ranae, who does business at 1802 Locust Ln., Mount Prospect, is one such psychic. "It all comes from God," she said. "I've had the power ever since I was a child. I know it's a God-given thing which I am using to help people."

Mrs. Ranae said she's been close to death seven times (a significant Biblical number), and each time God has seen her through.

Jean Bonnell: 'I won't tell people bad things even if I feel them'

MYSTIC MYSTIQUE

For a small fee they will tell you your future

Reading the Tarot cards

Her literature says she predicted the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, the date World War II would end and the 1968 Chicago riots. She said she was visited by Presidential aides in 1972 when she saw a "vision" of violence at the Munich Olympic games shortly before a trip by Richard Nixon to Germany, Most of her predictions are unpublished.

In a small, but tidy office in her home, Mrs. Ranae asked for a couple of objects that belong to me to help her get vibrations. She took my ring and wallet, pressed them to her forehead and whispered a prayer.

"I can see you making a lot of money," she said, which sounded pretty good to me. "I also see your wife with a baby"

As my mouth dropped in surprise, she explained that it wouldn't be immediate — down the road a bit. But she saw two in my future. (No plans, thank you.) She also predicted a job change in two years.

Mrs. Ranae described my wife in glowing terms, all applicable of course, and that she saw no divorce in the future.

While much of the reading was general and interpretive, Mrs. Ranae did come up with some winners — proof, perhaps, that she has something "extra." She gave a pretty good description of my brother and sister, neither of whom look alike, and how much money I have in my bank account.

She told me she is a friend of Peter Hurkos, famous Dutch psychic who uses his power to solve crimes, and that she, too, has assisted local police departments.

"I even predicted Ralph Doney (Mount Prospect police chief) would be promoted to chief," she said.

Doney confirmed Mrs. Ranae's story, saying she told him about the promotion six months before he became chief in 1974.

"She also told me I would have problems with the plumbing in a new house I bought," Doney said. "I went on vacation and sure enough, when I returned water had backed up in my basement."

Mrs. Ranae also made some predictions about the Presidential election.

"The Democrats are holding back a couple of men. If Kennedy runs, he's in like flint," she said. "None of the Democrats running for President now will get in. Ford and Walker, you can forget about them."

But apparently she made a goof when she said Reagan stands a better chance of getting the GOP nod than Ford. Well, you can't be right all the time and most psychics are the first to agree on that.

A psychic who appears to be all things to all people — yoga expert, spiritual healer, lecturer, fortune teller and parapsycholiogist, is Joseph L. Pinkston, 2453 N. Orchard St., Chicago.

Pinkston, a member of "Academy of Parapsychological Medicine," said he discovered his power at the age of 16 as a child in his native Kentucky.

"I was in church one day and I told a fellow that I could tell him what tomorrow's newspaper headlines would be," Pinkston said. "He didn't believe me but I told him anyway. I was right. I don't think the publisher liked me very well 'cause I could tell the people before the paper came out."

Pinkston closed his eyes and began to concentrate on his subject. He said there was someone by the name of Mary very close to me (my sister), and that I live on a second floor apartment, which is the case. "You've been to a golf tournament recently (also correct) and I see that you've been to Denver in the last year or so (two years ago)," Pinkston said.

He looked at Photo Director Tom Grieger, who was sitting beside me, and told him that his car was recently struck in the back. Correct again.

In fact, Pinkston, like Mrs. Ranae and others, was very skillful perceiving things that would be very difficult to know without there being something to ESP or mind reading. Most of it's trivia — little things which don't mean much, but provide some good entertainment.

But Pinkston was reluctant to pin himself down on specific predictions. Wealth and long life were promised and, again, a family.

Pinkston also made a political prediction: Ford a probable loser in Wisconsin. The primary played havoc with those vibes.

Psychics can use more than ESP to tell the tale of what's to be. Some prefer the old techniques such as tarot cards, 22 cards with symbolic figures whose order in a deck can foretell a death, birth, fortune or misfortune.

Some, like August Schoen, 17 N. State St., Chicago, read one's "auras" — colorful halos around the body. Like a mood ring, the key to disposition and fate is in the color of the aura.

Schoen, a man in his 80's, who also says he gets his power from God, believes we've all lived many lives and the soul "has a memory of them."

"You are living out what you've created," he said. "You are here for a lesson and the soul never dies. Life is like school. You have to make every effort to overcome problems."

Getting a reading on your aura apparently is one way to do it.

Schoen closed his eyes and rubbed my palm.

"Your aura is very blue," he told me. "That's good. That means you're peaceful." As the reading went on my aura changed to purple, even better, Schoen said.

"Purple means high ideals. You read good books," he explained. Another rub of the palm.

Schoen went so far to say that I might have made a minister or pyschic myself. (Very, very doubtful.)

Jean Bonnell, "The Genie," who lives at 2000 Parkside Dr., Park Ridge, uses her skills for entertainment only.

"I don't believe in throwing fear into people. I won't tell them bad things if I feel them," she said, reiterating the practice most pyschics employ — sticking to the good news.

"I do it to bring joy to people at parties and club events — just to have a good time. I's fun," she said. "I don't give private readings because I don't want to be a crutch for someone."

For Mrs. Bonnell, it's strictly show biz, a good time with the occult.

The Genie arrives at club affairs decked out in a red, white and blue Bicentennial outfit, with a garbage can of tricks and psychic fun — card games and the like.

Born a Scorpio, the astrological sign of most pyschics, she said she's interested in the occult only because she was "born curious." She developed her skills during the past six years.

Mrs. Bonnell's specialty, in addition to ESP readings, is palmistry and astrology.

She examined the lines and creases in my palm and said my health is good and my life line very long.

"I also can tell you're creative, have a good home life and worked at an early age," she said. The secrets are in the mounts of the Moon, Jupiter and Venus, the fleshy parts of the hand.

The Genie described my future prospects as "good" with money, success and everything that goes with it (ah, yes — the good news). She also predicted a job change, the second psychic to do so, and said it could occur within a year.

Mrs. Bonnell demonstrated her ESP ability beyond doubt as far as I'm concerned by telling me a relative of mine just gave birth to a baby girl (my sister-in-law).

She also said I've lived in the Northwest suburbs less than a year, have moved once since I've been here, and changed offices at work — all true.

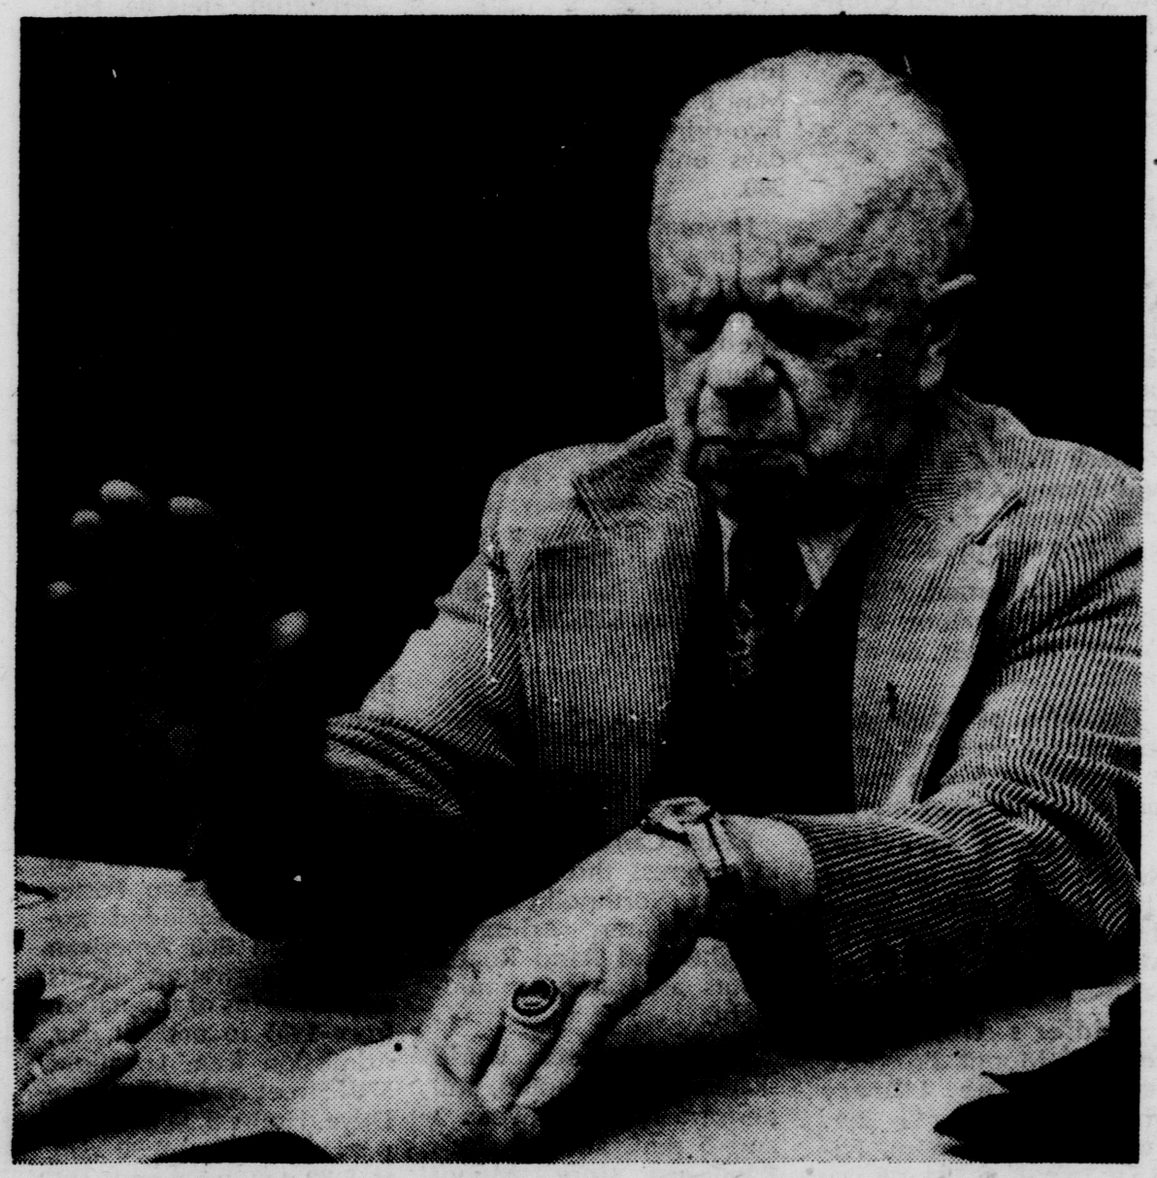
Closing her eyes and picking up more vibrations, the Genie told me my wife's name begins with a "J" (Jewell), and described a poster hanging in my office.

"You also live on a second floor apartment facing east. The color is predominantly green, and there is construction going on behind the apartment," she said. Right again.

In fact, Mrs. Bonnell passed the test with flying colors, although, like others, she was off base several times.

"I can't possibly get everything right," she said.

Once in a while is all that is required.



August Schoen will read your aura.

Clubs:

Most Inverness members know each other better than do members of other country clubs because they are also neighbors.

Developer Arthur T. McIntosh planned it that way when he purchased the former Meadow Grove Country Club and surrounding land near the intersection of Palatine and Roselle roads in 1938.

McIntosh set about building a "country club community" and today, the white frame, pillared clubhouse high on a hill is surrounded by his estate-like $80,000-plus homes.

Although the club is the center of the most exclusive community in the Northwest suburbs, the membership fees and monthly dues for golfing members are not out of line with those charged by other clubs in the area.

Initiation at both Inverness and Rolling Green for golfers is $5,000. Monthly dues are slightly less at Rolling Green ($100 instead of $115) but members of the Arlington Heights club are charged an extra $70 each summer for use of the pool.

As with virtually all country clubs, golf remains the raison d'etre, but Inverness added tennis courts a few years ago and hired a teaching pro. Rolling Green offers skeet shooting in the winter and the board of directors is considering building tennis courts. Both clubs operate first-class restaurants year round with food prepared by private chefs.

For individuals and families interested in belonging to a country club for business and social reasons, Inverness and Rolling Green offer "non-golfer" memberships. The charge at Inverness is $2,500 down and $57.50 for use of all facilities except the golf course. At Rolling Green, non-golfers pay $120 down and $30 a month.

There are nearly eight times as many social members at Rolling Green as there are at Inverness, which clearly reflects the difference in personalities of the two clubs.

Rolling Green, with its low, contemporary-style clubhouse set well back from busy Rand Road and nearly hidden by large trees, has a much more casual atmosphere than exists at the more formal Inverness club.

Although both managers described their clubs as "family clubs," Fleeter admitted there are few organized activities for children at Inverness. The board of directors also plans few social occasions compared to the schedule at Rolling Green.

"Our golf course is the big attraction," Fleeter said. "We have some social activities, but not a lot. There are usually four big parties a year with several smaller ones like Greek Nights or things like that."

Golf is, of course, very popular at Rolling Green, but it is more of a social club. "Whether a club is social or not just depends on the membership rosters," Zienty said. "The average age of Rolling Green members is in the early 50s — that's fairly young for a country club."

Dinner dances and theme parties are frequent at Rolling Green, Zienty said. Ladies and mixed bridge, bowling, leagues, luncheons, fashion shows and stag outings are also popular. Kids can take golf lessons and many participate in organized swim meets set up throughout the summer with other area clubs.

Both Zienty and Fleeter said they are confident the growing number of public and semi-private golf clubs throughout the country will never replace private clubs

"There's a big difference between public clubs and private clubs and there always will be," Zienty said. "Some people will always be willing to pay for the privilege of being exclusive."

Secluded Rolling Green is a haven for members.

Shelby Lyman on chess

World Titleholder Anatoly Karpov's latest triumph, a ten win and five draw first place in the 15 round international tournament at Skepje, Yugoslavia has excited much comment. Has a super champion come on the scene?

Karpov's record since succeeding Fischer argues strongly for the Soviet player's exceptional superiority. Many former scoffers have been convinced.

Adamant Fischer fans are now wondering aloud for the first time whether their reluctant hero could handle the physically slight, 120 pound Karpov who is an implacable tiger at the chessboard.

BEGINNER'S CORNER - Hint and explanation: Black's queen hangs suspended by a thread. Cut the thread!

It is a great pleasure sometimes to turn back the pages of chess history and stop a moment before one of its great treasures.

An example, see SOLVE-IT, is the game between the two giants, Alexander Alekhine and Emanuel Lasker, each a world champion in his time. Play is terminated in the diagrammed position when Alekhine plays 26.QxNP! For capture of the queen would lead to 27. R-Rch, N-R3; and 28. RxN mate.

In the words of Max Euwe, a champion himself: "Curious is Alekhine's knack of developing a seemingly harmless attack within a few moves, into a hurricane which smashes down all resistance."

Moves 18-26 merit this description and deserve study.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

North's jump to four spades showed a minimum opening bid with good spades. South decided not to use Blackwood in an effort to reach a grand slam.

It was well that he did. Had he bid four notrump, North would have responded five diamonds and East could have doubled to ask for a diamond lead against the eventual spade contract.

A diamond lead would have almost surely led to defeat of the six-spade contract, but West opened the eight of hearts and the late Albert Morehead, who sat South, proceeded to take all the tricks.

It wasn't too difficult. Dummy's nine covered the eight. East played the jack and Al won. Three trump leads left Al in dummy to lead the 10 of hearts. East's queen lost to the ace and West's seven spot fell.

Now it was a simple matter to enter dummy with the king of clubs, lead the deuce of hearts and take a successful finesse with the four spot against East's five. This made it possible for Al to discard dummy's queen of diamonds on the six of hearts.

UN to issue stamp

The United Nations Postal Administration (UNPA) on April 23 will issue a commemorative stamp marking the UN Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD).

In 1968, the first session of the Conference brought together representatives of 120 states to promote international cooperation in the field of trade and development.

This year's session, the fourth, will meet in Kenya and representatives of 147 nations are expected to attend.

The UNCTAD stamp will be issued in three denominations: the U.S. 13- and 31-cents and the Swiss F.s.1, 10 (with a U.S. equivalent of about 43-cents).

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations of the U.S. denominations should send their requests to "FDC/UNCTAD Stamp, United Nations Postal Administration, P.O. Box 5900, Grand Central Station, New York, NY 10017" enclosing the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

For those of you wanting first day cancellations on the Swiss denomination, your covers must go to "FDC/UNCTAD Stamp, United Nations

The Northwest Stamp Club will conduct its Spring Auction from 1 to 5 p.m. April 25 at the Arlington Heights Public Library, 500 E. Dunton Avenue. Admission is free and visitors are welcome.

The club's secretary, Frank Fischer, tells me 85 people attended the March bourse and (to F.G. of Wheeling) this is an excellent place to meet area stamp collectors.

TV writers talk about censorship

'We're not allowed to give our best'

by Karen Blecha

When writer Susan Harris wanted to include the line "Oh, my God" in the short-lived NBC series "Fay," she encountered problems.

Not acceptable, irreverent, said network officials. "What else can we say?" Harris asked. One suggestion — and it was serious: "Lord, love a duck."

Funny? Not really. There's nothing funny about the censorship of television programs that goes on in TV land every day by network officials interested only in presenting the least objectional programming.

"Don't blame us," the writers say. "We're not allowed to give you our best."

Harris is one of 10 writers, producers and directors interviewed in the hour-long WTTW/Channel 11 documentary "You Should See What You're Missing" which airs at 8 p.m. Tuesday and repeats 7 p.m. Wednesday.

The program attempts to explain why commercial television is the way it is, "why there are so many cop shows with chases that lead to nowhere, gun battles where people never bleed and laugh tracks that tell viewers when to laugh." The program might also give you some idea why television had its worst season ever this year, with more program cancellations than any time in TV history.

"Viewers are missing thinking. They're missing feeling. They're missing passion. They're missing the really funny stuff. And they're missing drama," said Larry Gelbart, co-producer and writers of "M*A*S*H," also interviewed in the show. "Otherwise, they're not missing a thing."

People interviewed in the program include Joseph Wambaugh, novelist and consultant for "Policy Story" and "The Blue Knight;" Danny Arnold, executive producer and creator of "Barney Miller;" Byron Paul, executive producer of "The New Dick Van Dyke Show;" and Allan Mannings, writer of "Good Times" and "One Day At A Time."

Abbey Mann, writer of the special "Marcus-Nelson Murders" which was the pilot for "Kojak" and creator of "Medical Story," points out that Hollywood has a wealth of talented writers who are not permitted a free-hand.

"I just can't help thinking what a pity it is that we don't have a medium that calls out for the best, but calls out for the worst in them. I think the fact that television is crowded from morning to night with so much pap is a national disgrace," he said.

Joseph Wambaugh, consultant, "Police Story": "What if you get only 15 million people watching your show? Why does it have to be 30 million or 40 million?"

Mann tells how the networks bowed to pressure from the AMerican Medical Assocation (AMA) on the content of "Medical Story." He's glad the show was cancelled, he said, because after censorship it became "a copout, stilted and a bore." He explains how he intended the "Marcus-Nelson Murders" to show how vulnerable cops are but that the spin-off "Kojak" shows policemen who are always right.

Paul tells how CBS refused to air an episode of the "New Dick Van Dyke Show" where a small child inadvertently walks in on her parents making love. The show, tastefully done, was aired in Canada and Australia and there was not one complaint from viewers.

"The networks want to sell and want to keep the advertisers happy and they want to keep most of the programs as inoffensive as possible," said Liam O'Brian, of "Police Story." "It is the bland leading the bland."

Writers also said they do not agree with the excess use of violence on television but it is what network officials believe the masses want.

"Often you have to insert violence into a show where it doesn't belong at all just to satisfy a basic need in the hearts of network and studio executives," said Wambaugh, consultant for "Police Story."

Michael Hirsch, producer of the show, said he selected those to be interviewed on the basis of a lawsuit that has been filed by writers and producers against the networks. The suit contends government and the networks conspired to develop "The Family Hour," a case of outright government interference of broadcasting.

"This show was the first time the creative people had the opportunity to use their own medium to tell the viewers how they feel," said Hirsch, who included clips from TV shows in the documentary to emphasize the writers' points. "They are tired of being blamed by the public. It's not their fault."

Hirsch said he tried to get the other side of the story from network officials but they refused to talk to him.

Some of the writers like Gelbart of "M*A*S*H," one of the most uncensored shows on TV, are giving up television writing. But others have decided to stay on and fight. Besides, the money's good and they've gotten used to big salaries.

"Some of them are committeed," Hirsch said. "They keep knocking their heads against the wall but they think it's worth it."

Hirsch said the only way things will change is if viewers let network officials know they are fed up with bland, unrealistic programming. "They seem to forget there is an off switch," he said.

Coincidentally CBS plans to air a program called "Inside Public Television" at 9 p.m. Tuesday. The program takes an in-depth look at stations like Channel 11. It would be interesting to watch both programs.

Zimbalist - critical of society

EFREM ZIMBALIST, JR.

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Efrem Zimbalist Jr. believes the battle has been lost — and the war is being lost, too.

It is the fight against communism that concerns him. To Zimbalist, that fight is of immediate and powerful national interest. And he is morosely pessimistic about its outcome.

His own show, "The F.B.I.," has run its course. It was cancelled after nine successful seasons. That's the battle that has been lost.

"We tried to fight communism on The F.B.I.," he says. "But we were attacked for years, and I believe it was a well organized attack. We were attacked by the press and by comedians and by everybody.

"Consider this — in the nine years we were on, we were never nominated for an Emmy. Not one. And we had some very good shows. But we didn't get a nomination in any category — acting, writing, not even in the technical areas. That can't be just a coincidence."

He feels that this lost battle is merely one more lost stuggle in a losing war. To him, the menace of international communism is still our greatest danger.

"As I see it," he says, "our civilization is coming to an end. I am very pessimistic. I don't see any hope for a change.I've seen three quarters of the world disappear into darkness, and I can't see one reason why we won't go the same way."

"To me, communism equals slavery. And yet people all over the world seem to want it. They would rather have security than freedom, and that situation means the end of freedom."

Zimbalist believes everything that has happened in the world recently is part of the international communist conspiracy.

"I don't think anything that's happened has been accidental," he says. 'All the things that have happened in the fields of education, morals, crime, economics — it's all been a concerted attack on our lives.

"And I think the radicalization of the entertainment industry is part of that master plan. Yes, I believe the entertainment industry is being radicalized.

Zimbalist had a long career on the side of law and order — first, as a private eye on "77 Sunset Strip" for seven years, and then nine years as Inspector Erskine on "The F.B.I." Now, he doubts that he will ever accept another series role as cop, private eye or agent.

Actually, these comfortable days he isn't too anxious to do very much of anything. He lives well now, in a comfortable home surrounded by what amounts to a private zoo — he has exotic beasts such as a llama, an African pygmy goat and a rare parrot that laughs and holds imaginery telephone conversations.

"These days," he says, "I'm only interested in doing things I haven't done before. I wouldn't play a private eye or an F.B.I. man. I've done that."

But he isn't really looking for work. He spends most of his time playing golf.

"I have my good days and my bad days," he says, "but, on the whole, I'm getting better. It's a tough game, but a fascinating one. I played golf as a boy, but then I switched to tennis, and I played tennis for years. But then I got a tennis elbow and had to quit, so I'm back to golf again."

So it's golf that is his main interest in life, besides observing what he considers the deteriorating political scene. Working holds little interest for him now.

"I have enough money," he says, "so money wouldn't temp me to take a part. I don't want another series, that's for sure."

Zimbalist occasionally takes a part, if it excites him, but that rarely happens. He can afford to be choosy about what he does. It's not only the part he is choosy about, but the overall implications of the work.

"I could never do anything," he says, "that was antisocial or harmful, no matter how good the part or how lucrative the pay. One has responsibility, as an actor, to make some contribution to society, no matter how small."
